HOT ATTACK ON KITCHENER

'BLUNDERS' CHARGED TO EARL

By International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A bitter attack was made upon Earl Kitchener, the absent War Secretary, in the House of Commons this afternoon.

A. A. Lynch, a Nationalist from West Clare, Ireland, declared that "Lord Kitchener's blunders stand out like the Rock of Gibraltar in the world of blunderdom."

Premier Asquith, in answer to a question, denied that Lord Haldane was assisting in the administration of the War Office. There was much hostility to Lord Haldane because of his pro-German views before the war broke out.

Premier Asquith made an important statement in Commons when he answered charges that had been made against the government.

"When the story of the loss of Antwerp is told Winston Churchill will be fully justified," said the Premier.

"Mr. Churchill, who was First Lord of the Admiralty when the war broke out, undertook to save Antwerp from the Germans, going there himself at the head of a force of marines, but the city was easily captured by the invaders."

Plea for Husband Was Made in Vain

With a babe in arms Mrs. Ernest Mulligan of Charlestown, wife of Ernest Mulligan who was in Municipal Court today charged with larceny from an express wagon, pleaded in vain for clemency for her husband. He was committed to the House of Correction. Hobert Hurley, arraigned with Mulligan, was sentenced to serve six months. He appealed.

Woman Is Guilty of Burning Furniture

Mrs. Mary J. Tatro of Columbus avenue was found guilty today by a jury in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court of burning furniture in her home, on the night of September 30, when members of the fire department discovered five fires burning in her apartment.

Austrians Retake Italian Position

By International News Service.

VIENNA via Amsterdam, Nov. 11.—The War Office announced today that counter-attacks by Austro-Hungarian troops had resulted in the recapture of Col Di Lana, the mountain position recently taken by the Italians.

Copenhagen Reports Battle in Baltic

By International News Service.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11.—A naval battle is reported to have been fought in the Baltic Sea, off the German island of Fahmarn, Wednesday. Heavy cannonading was heard for twenty minutes.

Five Members in New British War Committee

By International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The war committee of the British Cabinet will have five members, Premier Asquith announced today in the House of Commons. Its members will be:

Premier Asquith, who is also acting Secretary of State for War in the absence of Earl Kitchener.

A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty.

David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions.

Andrew Bonar Law, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Imperial Exchequer.

The war committee will co-operate with the General Staff and the Anglo-French staff in directing the war operations.

The Premier stated that naval, military and diplomatic advisers would assist the war committee.

Warns England of Becoming Bankrupt

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Great Britain cannot go on indefinitely as she has been going without becoming bankrupt. Lord Devonport, Chairman of the Port of London Authority, which controls shipping and docks of the Thames, warned the House of Lords.

"The figures given as to expenditure on war and civil establishments for a full year approach very nearly to the aggregate amount of the income of the nation," he said.

Italy Celebrates Birthday of King

By International News Service.

ROME, Nov. 11.—King Victor Emmanuel's birthday was celebrated throughout Italy today, though war conditions and the Ancona tragedy caused the cancellation of some of the ceremonies which usually take place at this time. The King is forty-six years old. Though a heavy rain was falling a large crowd met in the Capitol [illegible] and the royal family.

Sir Edward Grey Wanted to Resign

By International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Sir Edward Grey the British Foreign Secretary, stated in the House of Commons today that at the time Lord Haldane retired from the cabinet, he himself expressed to Premier Asquith his desire to resign.

"But the crisis forbade," added Sir Edward.

Cattleman Sent to Jail for Theft

Thomas H. Randolph, thirty-eight years old, who was before Judge Wentworth in the Somerville District Court today charged with breaking and entering the home of Miss Lillian Forbes on Rogers avenue, Somerville, and stealing jewelry valued at $50, was sent to the House of Correction for six months. Randolph said he was a cattleman recently returned from England.

WOMAN IS POISON VICTIM

Mrs. Ellen A. Donaldson, secretary of the Social Service League of Waltham, was found early today suffering from the effects of poison in a room at the Lowell Young Women's Christian Association.

She was taken to St. John's Hospital in Lowell, where her condition was found to be serious.

Mrs. Donaldson, who has a daughter in the Waltham High School, and whose parents live in Dorchester, is prominent in social service work in Waltham.

She went to Lowell yesterday and registered at the Y. W. C. A. at 7.30 last night.

During the evening she did some writing, and at about 10 o'clock went to her room.

Early this morning noises in the room attracted the attention of others in the building, and they entered to find Mrs. Donaldson in convulsions, evidently suffering great agony.

She was taken to the hospital. The physicians there at once said she was suffering from the effects of poison. She lapsed into unconsciousness without being able to speak.

LEAVES A NOTE.

The Y. W. C. A. authorities said she left a note, saying that she did not feel well, and that if anything happened she wished them to notify her parents. She asked that they keep the facts secret, because she said her daughter in the Waltham High School would feel publicity unpleasant.

Mrs. Donaldson's parents were notified by telephone and hurried to Lowell.

In Mrs. Donaldson's room was found a small bottle containing a colorless liquid.

Mrs. Donaldson's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Horne of Dorchester. Mr. Horne said in Lowell today:

"My daughter had suffered from nervous prostration, and had at times taken a sedative to produce sleep.

"She left home yesterday afternoon to go to Waltham to get some important papers. We did not oppose her going, for she was a very determined woman.

"She is well known as a pianist, both in concert and church work, and has done social service work for the State at times."

ILL SEVERAL DAYS.

Mrs. Donaldson's father was former master of the William H. Russell School, and now president of the Dorchester Historical Society. He lives with her parents at No. 11 Tileston place, Dorchester, as did her young daughter. Her husband is dead.

She is a lead worker and secretary of the Waltham Social Service League, which position she has held since the formation of the league, four years ago.

Mrs. Horne said today: "My daughter has been ill about ten days with a nervous trouble and an abscessed tooth. Yesterday she said she must go to Waltham. I tried to dissuade her, but she insisted. It was a great surprise to me that she went to Lowell. I think she must have boarded the wrong train by mistake."

Waltham friends of Mrs. Donaldson speak highly of her and her work. They say she must have taken something to ease the pain of her tooth and accidentally taken an overdose.

Begin Trial of Boy Accused of Setting Fires

The trial of Alexander Borstel, the seventeen-year-old Dorchester boy, who was arrested on October 13 on a charge of setting fire to an unfinished two-family dwelinghouse at No. 3 Everton street, Dorchester, began today in the Suffolk Superior Court before Judge Hitchcock and a jury.

The boy is accused of arson.

In his opening address Assistant District Attorney Moloney declared that the government would show that the boy had confessed and had told the police that he and some boy companion "had been going about nights with a root beer bottle filled with kerosene to set fires."

Liner Wrecked Off Nova Scotia; Believe 23 Died

By International News Service.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—The steamer D. A. Gordon has been wrecked in a heavy storm, and it is feared that all the twenty-three men in the crew have been lost.

The D. A. Gordon was a vessel of 2,202 tons, and was owned by the Canadian Steamship Lines, Ltd. It was built in 1910 at Port Glasgow, and was registered under the British flag from Glasgow.

The steamer was caught by a storm between Sydney, N. S., and St. John, N. B., and shattered on the rocks when driven ashore. A dispatch from St. John says that no trace of any survivors has been found.

Kaiser Commutes Sentences of Women

By International News Service.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—According to the newspaper Tyd, the Kaiser has commuted the death sentences of Countess Jeanne Delleville, Mme. Louise Thulles and Louis Severin to life sentences of imprisonment. They were sentenced to death as spies at the same time Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse, was convicted of helping soldiers escape from Belgium.

Asks Guardian, Says Sister Is Wasteful

Miss Suzanne E. Merrill of Boston today filed in the Suffolk Probate Court a petition asking that a guardian be appointed for her sister, Mary L. Merrill. The petition says that Mary Merrill spends and wastes her estate in excessive drinking, exposing herself to want, and that she may become a city charge.

Butcher Fined for Electricity Theft

Giochino Lombardi, a butcher, was fined $25 today in the East Boston Court on a charge of stealing electricity from the Edison Electric and Illuminating Company. He appealed.

"GETS ON WITHOUT FITZ"

Mayor Curley today denied the rumor of a political peace arrangement between himself and former Mayor Fitzgerald, but refused to say whether their mutual friends had tried to bring about such an understanding.

He further stated that:

He had not conferred with Fitzgerald, or even spoken to him except when presiding over two political rallies, since election day, almost two years ago.

There had been no conference with Fitzgerald, or any communication either direct or indirect, on any personal or political question.

If friends of the administration had talked peace with Fitzgerald, before or after his recent published promise to assist Curley in all constructive measures, the Mayor had no knowledge of it personally.

Asked if former Mayor Fitzgerald would be received at City Hall if he presented himself, Mayor Curley declared:

"My office door is always open, even to ex-Governor Foss, and that applies in this case as in all others.

"I haven't spoken to Mr. Fitzgerald since elected two years ago, except when at two political meetings this Fall, but I seem to have gotten along pretty well notwithstanding that fact.

"I see no reason for changing my two-year policy, and don't anticipate any change at this time."

Mayor Curley also denied the rumor published in another newspaper that he intended to ask for the resignation of Corporation Counsel John A. Sullivan, or that he had this in mind at all.

Honors Conferred by Japanese Ruler

By International News Service.

KYOTO, Japan, Nov. 11.—Many honors were conferred today by Emperor Yoshihito in connection with the coronation ceremonies. Chief of the living who were honored was Count Okuma, the Premier, who was elevated to be a marquis.

Lafcadio Hearn, the American author, who lived and married in Japan, although long dead, was given the fourth grade of court rank.

The shade of Hideyoshi, the sixteenth century conqueror of Korea, and the spirits of the Japanese negotiators of the Townsend-Harris treaties were also decorated.

Complain About Holes on Common

Complaint that several dangerous holes existed on the parade ground near the Beacon street end of the Common resulted in Captain John Dillon, chairman of the Park Commissioners, personally inspecting the ground there today. He asserted that during the recent military maneuvers the ground, perhaps, was torn up in some way and that any such holes would be filled up promptly.

HUNT MAN WHO BEAT A ROXBURY GIRL WITH CLUB

Eileen Earner, Roxbury girl, attacked by man with club. Photograph shows her with head still bandaged.

As a result of an attack upon pretty eighteen-year-old Eileen Earner of No. 202 Norfolk avenue, Roxbury, by an unknown man, the police of that district are conducting a rigid investigation in their efforts to check such attacks, which have been frequent the past two months.

Miss Earner received a wound over her right eye which necessitated five stitches, two blackened eyes and several body injuries. She is under a doctor's care.

"This man has influenced me for life," Miss Earner said.

"The doctor tells me that the blow I received will leave a permanent scar, but after all something was done to protect unescorted girls on the streets after dark.

"I was at my very doorsteps when this man clubbed me. He asked me for directions in a certain street. I answered him politely, for I did not know he struck me. My eyes fragmented him. My folks then cared for me in the house.

"I think he was a socialist. His voice was low and his complexion very dark. He was a strong fellow and wore a dark suit and soft hat."

MEDFORD GIRL IS STRANGELY MISSING

Miss Anna Barker, a Medford girl of seventeen, has disappeared from her home at No. 71 Adams street, it became known today.

She has not been seen by Miss Elizabeth Murphy, with whom she was staying, since October 16, the day of the suffrage parade. The police have been running down several clews.

Miss Barker was born in Manchester, England, but came to this country when she was four years of age, and since that time she has been living with Miss Murphy. She attended a Cambridge high school for three years.

The girl told Miss Murphy, according to the latter, that she had a position as a stenographer in a Boston store, but the police have investigated the matter and have discovered that Miss Barker never worked in the store by which she claimed she was employed.

Miss Barker is five feet two inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. She has Titian hair. When she left home she had on a brown hat, dark green coat, blue dress, white collar and cuffs and black shoes.

Say French Seized New York Bank Mail

ZURICH, Nov. 11.—According to the Neues Zuricher Zeitung, the French postoffice for some weeks has been confiscating dispatches and registered letters containing checks and coupons sent from New York for collection. This has happened especially in cases in which the bank to which they were addressed were opposed to the Anglo-French loan. The seizures include American bank notes.

British Blamed for Loss of Parcel Post

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The suspension of the parcel post service from Germany to America is explained in official circles as due to the fact that the Holland-American line informed the German authorities it was unable longer to carry parcels, owing to interference by the British. Other steamship lines are unwilling for the same reason to carry parcels.

CAPTAIN SAYS LINER WAS NOT WARNED

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The British steamship Carin has been sunk. The members of the crew were saved. The steamship Carin was owned by the Cunard Steamship Company. She sailed from Liverpool October 7 for Naples. The vessel was 3,032 tons gross. She was 318 feet long, 43 feet beam and 25 feet deep.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Steamship officials in Rome today announced that the Ancona carried 496 passengers and 160 in crew when she sailed. As only 326 have been reported saved, it is believed 336 lives were lost.

A Tunis dispatch says it is now believed all the Americans on board were lost. A Rome dispatch to the Central News says twenty-three American passengers are missing.

German claims that the Ancona tried to escape are officially denied in Italy.

By International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Reuter's correspondent at Tunis cabled today that Captain Massardo, of the Ancona, had arrived there and declared emphatically that the submarine which sank his ship gave no signal to stop, but opened fire without warning. An earlier report from Naples had reported that Captain Massardo had perished.

"The first sign of the presence of the submarine was shells from a distance of five miles, which passed the steamer," Captain Massardo was quoted by the correspondent as saying.

"The Ancona stopped dead.

"Subsequently shells hit the boats, which were being made ready for launching and many passengers were killed or wounded on deck and in the boats.

"Some of the passengers who had been thrown into the water approached the submarine, but were repelled and derided. Finally shells and torpedoes were fired at the Ancona from a distance of 300 yards."

WILD PANIC ON BOARD.

Blind panic reigned on the Ancona during her final hours, says a dispatch from Malta. Most of the steerage passengers were women and children, who became insane with terror when the Austrian submarine began shelling the ship.

The Ancona was sunk on Monday afternoon. The submarine was sighted at 1 o'clock, racing toward the Ancona at top speed. When the vessel was overhauled only a few minutes were given by the Austrian commander for the passengers to disembark.

This is the story told by one of the survivors who was landed here today:

"Practically all of the third-class passengers on the Ancona were Greek and Italian emigrants, bound for the land of promise, the United States. A majority of them were women and children.

"About 1 o'clock on Monday afternoon, while we were steaming through the Mediterranean, a submarine was sighted in the distance. Through the glasses it could be seen that she was travelling at top speed toward us.

"So swift was the pace of the submarine that she was soon plainly visible on the surface, her prow threw-

Greeks Get Allies' Loan of $8,000,000

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The loan of $8,000,000 from Great Britain, France and Russia to Greece has been concluded and the money is now at the disposal of the Hellenic government. The formal declaration by the new government of Premier Skouloudis concerning the continued neutrality of Greece and her good will toward the entente powers, which was made public on Nov. 1, at Paris, was communicated simultaneously to all the capitals of the entente nations.

French Funds $23,153.

Kidder, Peabody & Company announced today that the French Wounded Emergency Fund has grown to $76,373.64, and with the addition of the Motor Truck Fund, and the Volunteer Room Fund, has reached a total of $123,153.56.

SUBMARINE SHELLED SURVIVORS

ing up sheets of spume as she sped in our direction.

"While still a considerable distance away the submarine fired a few shells across our bows as a signal to heave to. Immediately most of the passengers came to the conclusion that we were being bombarded and a panic ensued.

"Women ran screaming about the decks with wild-eyed children clinging to their skirts. Others sought safety in their cabins, while some prayed for deliverance from death. Others hastily buckled on life preservers and prepared to clamber into the lifeboats.

"As we did not slow down quick enough the submarine renewed her bombardment, and this time the shells were directed at the ship. Every time a projectile struck—and the shattering of wood and glass told me the shell had struck its mark—the pandemonium on board increased.

"The excitable Italian and Greek women, believing that they were doomed, lost their heads completely. The men behaved not much better. Within a short time the submarine had drawn up alongside and we could see that she was flying the Austrian flag. The commander shouted from the bridge that he would give us a few moments to get away.

ORDERED TO HURRY.

"'Make haste,' he shouted, 'for I am going to sink you.'

"The submarine commander, ensured with the oil of the vessel's engines, then gave an order and the underwater boat veered off. As he did so the gun on the big craft was again unlimbered and the shells began dropping around us, throwing up columns of spray high into the air.

"Working in a frenzy of haste, the seamen on the Ancona began filling and lowering the lifeboats. There was no time to think of anything but human safety, and even in that fateful hour some of the emigrants sought to save their bundles of baggage and wept bitterly when they had to leave their effects behind. The life savings of those poor people were swept away within a few minutes.

"In their haste to lower the boats the seamen overturned some of them. The shrieking victims in the water climbed into already overcrowded lifeboats and these were soon swamped. Sailors who were manning boats filled with women and children stood up and beat with their oars the struggling victims in the water. Many who were thus knocked unconscious sank to their death.

SHOTS AMONG STRUGGLING.

"It was a terrible scene, but some had to be sacrificed to prevent disaster to even greater numbers. If the men in the water had been allowed to climb into the overcrowded boats filled with women and children, they, too, would have sunk.

"Some clung to bits of wreckage, but the submarine made no effort to rescue them.

"Even as the lifeboats were being lowered, and even as men, women and children, helpless in the water, struggled to save themselves, the submarine opened fire with her gun again. Although she fired at the sinking Ancona, many of the shots fell into the water amidst the drowning victims.

"The frightfulness of the scene was terrible. Many became insane from sheer fright.

"The saddest part of the affair was that so many of the victims were women and little children."

"Although the captain of the Ancona had been warned to travel cautiously through the submarine infested waters between Italy and Gibraltar, the Ancona was not convoyed by a warship."

Another survivor, who was landed here from an English ship, told the following story:

"Shortly after leaving Naples we were notified to put in at Messina for more passengers and cargo. We left Messina at 8 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The captain was warned to take every precaution to avoid the German and Austrian submarines, which are now extremely active in the Mediterranean.

"When we were attacked I was surprised at the enormous size of the submarine. It carried at least one long range gun in addition to torpedo tubes. Her crewmen were very accurate. The fifth shot fired carried away the chart house.

"The Ancona did not try to escape. As quickly as possible the engines were shut down and the vessel came to a stop.

RUSH FOR BOATS.

"There was a terrible panic on board, and the rush for the first lifeboats was so great that the sailors were swept from their feet. When the boats were finally lowered the submarine dropped shots around the sinking ship to hasten our departure.

"About eight boats got away. Some were overcrowded, others were underfilled."

BRIDE IS AMONG PASSENGERS OF SUNKEN ANCONA

Mrs. Maria G. Musto, nineteen-year-old bride on the Ancona, whose relatives in Boston fear she may be among the victims of the disaster.

Among those on the torpedoed steamer Ancona was Mrs. Maria Grazia Musto, nineteen, the bride of Michaelangelo Musto of Brooklyn, and sister of Giuseppa and Peter Scaramuzzo of No. 16 Fleet street, North End.

Mrs. Musto and her husband were completing their honeymoon journey by a trip to the United States, where a new home had been prepared. She had never been to the United States.

The two brothers of the girl conduct a shoe repairing shop at No. 15 Exchange avenue. Giuseppe is the oldest of the family of eight children and has been in Boston for the past seventeen years, coming here when he was a lad of nine.

DENY THAT ANCONA TRIED TO ESCAPE FROM SUBMARINE

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ROME, Nov. 11.—German claims that the Italian steamship Ancona was trying to escape when sunk by a submarine were officially denied today.

Cascia Dominioni, the Italian consul at Tunis, reported to the Italian government that the Ancona stopped when a shot was fired across her bow, but that the submarine continued to shell the liner, killing and wounding scores of her passengers.

Consul Dominioni's report, which was based on statements made to him by survivors, accused the submarine's crew of deliberately firing upon the boats into which the passengers had been rushed when the commander of the liner knew his ship was sinking.

"The survivors," said the Consul's report, "unanimously declare that the submarine, which was a large vessel, deliberately fired on the boats, sinking some and killing and wounding the passengers, chiefly women and children. They also assert that the crew of the submarine wore civilian clothing, but it is definitely ascertained that the vessel was an Austrian submarine."

Hopes that some of those recorded as missing would be picked up by other ships were practically abandoned today when the government commissioner of immigration announced that no reports of additional survivors had reached his office during the night.

Twenty-six Americans, or naturalized citizens of that country, are listed on the passenger rolls which arrived from Naples today and were carefully examined by the commissioner of emigration. Only one, Dr. Cecilo L. Oriel of New York city was listed as a first cabin passenger. The other twenty-five were in the steerage.

Dr. Oriel is said to have been saved, but all, or nearly all, of those in the steerage are believed to have perished.

DEMAND VENGEANCE.

The wave of horror that swept over Italy when it became known that the liner, carrying many women and children to a neutral port, had been destroyed was intensified today by the efforts of Berlin to justify the sinking on the ground that the Ancona was trying to escape.

Immediate vengeance is demanded by the Italian press, which declares that the sinking of the Ancona a more flagrant violation of the laws of civilization that was the torpedoing of the Lusitania. The newspapers call upon the government to make an aggressive campaign against the submarines, whether of German or Austrian nationality.

Premier Salandra called a special meeting of the Cabinet today. Admiral Corsi rendered an official report on the sinking of the Ancona, and presented for the consideration of his colleagues measures which the Ministry of Marine had formulated to clear the Mediterranean of enemy submarines.

The general military situation was also discussed by the Cabinet, but the session was devoted chiefly to the situation which has arisen from the submarine invasion of the Mediterranean.

LINER VERDI ESCAPES.

Reports reached here late last night that the new Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi, making her maiden voyage to New York with 400 passengers on board, had been torpedoed and sunk by a submarine, but several hours later it was announced that the steamer had reached Gibraltar in safety.

On its way through the Mediterranean the new liner sailed through the waters in which the submarines have been reported to be operating.

According to advices from Naples, Signor Ettore Spinicia, Italian commissioner to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, was a passenger on the Ancona and is included among the missing.

Prince Cassano of Naples is reported to have been saved.

The destruction of the Ancona will result in heavy monetary loss to the owners. The war insurance which she carried was only 70 per cent. of her value.

WILSON TO DISCUSS THE ANCONA WITH THE CABINET TOMORROW

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The submarine question, especially as it affects the United States through the torpedoing and sinking of the Italian liner Ancona by an underseas boat flying the Austrian colors, with a loss of American lives, will be considered by President Wilson and his cabinet tomorrow.

It is expected by Secretary of State Lansing that by that time enough of the facts will be known to determine whether this country has grounds for peremptory demands on Austria to disavow the action of her submarine commander.

In addition to the Ancona case it is likely that at this conference affairs of the State Department will monopolize attention.

The British attitude toward American and the suggestions of Ambassador von Bernstorff regarding the status of the Lusitania were to have been considered, and it is still believed there will be time enough to discuss them generally.

FEAR FOUL PLAY IN HAVERHILL DEATH

HAVERHILL, Nov. 11.—The body of Adolph Legasse was found near the Boston & Maine tracks here today by railroad employes. The police think the man had been killed and that his body had probably been thrown to the tracks from a vacant house, a few feet from the railroad.

From the marks on the victim's throat, the police said they thought he had been strangled. Their belief was that he was slain inside the vacant building, and that the slayer threw the body from a window.

The man with vigorous, virile health, and a clear mind, who brushes away obstacles, and rejoices in overcoming difficulties, is bound to succeed. His is the joyous outlook on life.

Physical and mental conditions like these come largely through proper eating—"Food makes the man."

Now it is a fact—attested by food experts—that the modern dietary is woefully lacking in the very elements that put success into a man. They are the mineral salts—Phosphate of Potash, etc. White bread is almost wholly lacking in them. But there is one food that richly supplies these vital elements, and that food is

Grape-Nuts

Made from whole wheat and barley, Grape-Nuts contains all the nutriment of the grain, including the valuable mineral salts. It is easily digested, is concentrated and has delicious taste. A daily ration of Grape-Nuts along with other food helps build vigorous bodies and keen brains.

WILSON TO TAKE DEFENCE ISSUE FROM POLITICS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—President Wilson expects to hold conferences as early as next week with Republican leaders in both the House and Senate it was learned today at the White House. He will invite them to call on him to discuss the proposed legislation for national defence.

President Wilson's intention in summoning Republican leaders is to take the national defence question entirely out of politics. He is desirous of making it a national issue and not to permit it to become a party matter in any way.

Administration followers believe the President's action in discussing his plans with the Republican leaders will go a long way towards balking the opponents of the program led by former Secretary of State Bryan.

A demand that he make public recommendations on preparedness made by experts of the naval general board and the army general staff was made on President Wilson today by the American Defence Society, in a letter from its New York headquarters.

The society also wrote Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Garrison asking them to aid in having the experts' reports published.

"Without the opinion of experts intelligent discussion of the question of national defence is impossible," the society stated.

The letter to President Wilson said:

"The coming session of Congress will have for its most important work, the discussion of an adequate measure of national defence. The purpose of national defence for the United States always will be to maintain the position of this great, free government among the nations of the world.

"The measure of national defence necessary to maintain that position is, we believe, outlined in considerable detail in the reports of the naval general board and the army general staff. Without the opinion of experts intelligent discussion of the question of national defence is impossible.

"We are, therefore, writing to you as the chief executive of the United States, to ask that in this critical hour you will use your influence to throw light upon the subject which is agitating patriotic American minds today."

Dr. Eliot Recalls Old College Days

President Emeritus Eliot of Harvard addressed the New England College Association today at its second day's session at Tufts College. Dr. Eliot told some of his recollections of New England colleges and college officials. Among those attending the meetings of the association are President Lowell of Harvard, President Hadley of Yale, President Faunce of Brown, President Garfield of Williams and Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Clark University.

Lynn Girl Caught in Shop Shafting

Miss Agnes Bachelor, employed in the Williams & Clark shoe factory in Lynn, lost part of her hair today when it caught in a shafting. She had the presence of mind to hold her hair with both hands so that the strands parted and she was saved from serious injury.

Pleads Not Guilty of Manslaughter

Rocco Corbo, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Pasquale Moscolli at Lynn, pleaded not guilty in the Lynn court today and was held in $5,000. It was alleged he stabbed Moscolli during an argument.

Cold Stops Melba from Singing Here

Mme. Melba will be unable to sing at the Symphony concerts this week. She is suffering from a heavy cold which began to develop Tuesday, and was so much worse today that it compelled her to give up all thought of singing again this week.

PEABODY FIRE CAUSES NEW RULES

PEABODY, Nov. 11.—An examination of the four outside walls of the burned St. John's Parochial School building by Inspector Cheney of the State department and Local Building Inspector Homer shows that three of them are fit to rebuild on while the fourth must be taken down to the first story.

They recommend brick partitions throughout, plastered walls in the basement, the omission of all sheathing and that the stairways lead to the outside of the building instead of inside as before.

An iron exit was recommended in St. John's Church.

XMAS BASKETS WILL BRING GREAT JOY

Become a Happiness Campaigner today!

All Boston is taking up the Campaign of Christmas Happiness—all Greater Boston too, for the happy spirit is contagious.

This is just the time for all of you to help. Old and young, every one is beginning to think of the Yuletide and the joys that it brings—so give a moment to think of the needy whose Christmas it will be in your power to brighten and to make cheerful by a little giving.

The Campaign of Christmas Happiness is on—and it is up to you to do your share.

Surely you are going to help the thousands who otherwise would spend a cheerless Christmas—and the best way to help is to do it now. "Do Your Christmas Shopping Early" is a mighty good maxim, and it's equally good a motto to do your Christmas giving to help the needy as early as possible—right now is the best time.

FIXINGS FOR BASKET.

The Happiness Campaign in the AMERICAN'S Christmas Dinner Basket Campaign—it is YOUR campaign, it's purpose is to provide Christmas dinners for the needy; to see that you who have an abundance are happy for having shared something with the needy; to see that those who are needy are happy because others have remembered them in their need.

It will be of interest to know what the Christmas baskets will contain. Here is the list of articles which will be in each basket:

Two chickens, fresh killed, weighing three pounds apiece.
Half peck of potatoes.
Quart of cranberries.
Pound of nuts.
Half a dozen oranges.
Package of tea.
Can of tomato soup.
Package of plum pudding.
Package of gelatine.
Package of biscuits.
Can of peas.
Two pounds of sugar.

BASKETS WILL COST $2.

The estimated cost of each basket is $2.

This means that every $2 you give will make a needy family happy.

Everybody wants to be happy at Christmas, and there is nothing more conducive to real happiness than the satisfaction of having done your part in making Christmas happy for others. The Campaign of Christmas Happiness is bound to be popular, for Boston is noted for its generosity, and in your preparation for a Merry Christmas you certainly do not intend to forget the needy of the city.

It is best to start now, early in the campaign, for an early start will ensure a success that will be all the greater for it.

The Campaign for Christmas Happiness is inspired by the splendid success of the AMERICAN'S "Give-a-Basket" movement last year when 7,000 baskets contributed by the generous people of Boston were distributed to needy homes.

Join the Campaign. Enlist today. Remember that every $2 you contribute means a fine Christmas dinner for a needy family.

GIVE YOUR MITE AND MAKE A NEEDY FAMILY HAPPY

Christmas is coming—only a few weeks away now.

The AMERICAN'S Christmas Dinner Basket Campaign is on. Are YOU going to help? How much are YOU going to give?

For every two dollars you give, you make a needy family happy.

Enlist now in the campaign of CHRISTMAS HAPPINESS.

Why You Should Bathe Internally

Under our present mode of living Nature, unassisted, cannot dispose of all the waste. This waste seeds its poisons into the system, through the blood circulation, and brings on countless ills. That's the reason a physician's first step in illness is to give a laxative.

Physicians generally, in order to stop this accumulation of waste, advise the use of "A. B. L. Cascara," Nature's cure for Constipation, which rids the lower intestine of all waste and keeps it healthy without drugging.

Cascara has long been known by the Rickard name as the best laxative. "A. B. L. Cascara" is the purest form in which Cascara is sold. "A Box of Today is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient."

ELLIOTT SAYS RAILROADS ARE HAMPERED

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Howard Elliott, just re-elected chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford directors, in addressing the Railway Development Association here said that the development of the roads of the country was being halted because the railroads, hampered by the government, were unable to supply the transportation the people need.

He said that most lines of industry were finding the same difficulty in meeting the demand, but declared that, as in the case of the farmer, the government helped, rather than hindered, his efforts to supply food the people need. Senator John W. Weeks also spoke at the meeting, discussing the Postoffice Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Elliott said, in part:

"The load upon the transportation business has been very heavy, and railroad owners and managers have tried hard to carry it.

"They are in the position of trying to serve 100,000,000 people, to whom fairly nearly 2,000,000 are added to respond to the conflicting rules, regulations and demands of 48 sovereign States and to pay close attention and obedience to the nation, acting through Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Meantime, the country has been growing. The result has been a diversion of energy into channels that were not productive.

"So today the country faces inadequate facilities."

Senator Weeks discussed the Postoffice Department, and designated it as "the best governmental organization we have."

Of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Senator Weeks said in part:

"As a result of its operations and the laws which have been passed by Congress, the railroad system of the United States is today on the verge of bankruptcy. The cost of operation has been constantly increasing without any corresponding increase in gross earnings.

"Rates, substantially speaking, are controlled by the Interstate Commerce Commission and State commissions, while there is no limitation on the cost of operations."

Barnard Girls Adopt New Honor System

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—At a meeting of the Undergraduate Association of Barnard College an important change was made in the rules governing the honor system. Under the new system a witness seeing a girl "cheating" will speak to the girl. Then she must report her own case, on her honor, to the Student Council and the president of the Undergraduate Association.

Governor Whitman Bags 170-Pound Deer

ALBANY, Nov. 11.—Governor Whitman brought down a buck weighing 170 pounds in the Cascade Lake region, according to word received at the Executive Chambers. He has been hunting for several days at Senator Cristman's estate in Herkimer County with Attorney-General Woodbury, State Engineer Williams, Highway Commissioner Duffey and Captain Lorillard Spencer.

Dutch Steamer on Fire Makes Capetown

By International News Service.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Nov. 11.—The Dutch steamer Rioumy, which sailed from New York September 21 for Auckland, raced into port here last night with fire raging in the cargo. Captain Ouwehand said today that the fire broke out five days ago and he had found it necessary to put in here for help.

Second Crop of Jersey Strawberries

WASHINGTON, N. J., Nov. 11.—Despite the fact that a short distance away a small pond is coated with ice, a second crop of strawberries is growing on the farm of Peter Kinnaman.

Two Dutch Boats Sunk.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 11.—Two Dutch fishing boats, the Scheveningen and the St. Nicholas, were sunk in the North Sea today. The former struck a mine and the latter was in collision with another boat. The crews were saved.

Hub Officers of Philippines Army Removed

Brigadier-General Jacob H. Smith (known as "Hell Roaring Jake") former commander of the Army of the Philippines, in an order issued in Chicago, has dishonorably discharged Commander-in-Chief Joseph S. Wood of Winthrop and Vice Commander-in-Chief Bartholomew J. Halley of Cambridge, who were elected in succeed General Smith and Brigadier-General Irving S. Hale, U. S. V., at the convention at the Quincy House on October 12.

According to the order the election of the national officers is declared illegal and void. The order declares that Wood and Halley, having been tried by the executive committee of the A. of F., and having been found guilty of several charges, among which was a statement by Halley at the election that "the Army of the Philippines was tired of being hossed by gold lace and gold braid," are sentenced "to be dishonorably discharged."

Both Wood and Halley have received letters declaring that they have been dishonorably discharged by a sentence of the executive committee.

Acushnet Assists Disabled Schooner

WOOD'S HOLE, Nov. 11.—The coast guard cutter Acushnet speeded to Nantucket Shoals in response to distress signals from the George W. Alcott, a three-masted schooner, with lumber aboard. The ship was found to be leaking badly. Before the Acushnet arrived, Captain Robert Ellis and the members of the Chatham life-saving crew had reached the schooner. They assisted at the pumps until the coast guard cutter arrived. The Alcott was towed to Vineyard Haven, where she will be repaired and proceed to New York.

PROTEST CUT IN PAY OF LETTER CARRIERS

The local branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers has forwarded to each of the Congressmen and Senators from Massachusetts resolutions of protest against the reduction in the salary of forty-two letter carriers in the Boston district.

The salary of these men was reduced by an order issued November 4 and effective November 1, or three days before it was issued. The letter accompanying the resolutions is signed by President D. J. McGillivray of the local branch and Secretary C. F. Malley.

The reduction in salary comes about as the result of an order that collectors shall receive a maximum of $1,000 per year, while men in delivery service may receive a maximum of $1,200 a year.

Thirteen men have lost $100 a year off their salaries, and twenty-nine men have lost $200 a year as a result of the order.

The reduction in salary is a result of a movement that has been in progress for some months. Congress and the Postoffice Department have repeatedly considered the matter. The order was first issued February 4, 1915, reducing salaries to $1,000. Later in that month a Congressional measure restored reduced men to their former salaries.

The letter carriers now claim that the effect of the new order is to work a hardship on older men who, after having deteriorated through long years in the delivery service, have been assigned to the collection service, where the work is considered easier.

FITCHBURG MAN MISSING ON EVE OF WEDDING

William Mead, an officer at the House of Correction in Fitchburg, after securing a ten-day leave of absence to marry Mrs. May G. Burrill of No. 106 Oxford street, Dorchester, has disappeared, it became known today.

Friends in Fitchburg fear he has met with foul play; and Mrs. Burrill, whom he was to wed, is distracted.

The marriage was to have taken place November 6. Mead's ten-day leave began late in October. He applied to City Clerk Davis of Fitchburg for a marriage license and said he would return at the expiration of the five-day period to receive it.

To Wind Up All That Remains of the Furniture Stock from

The Fire in Our Troy St. Furniture Warehouse, Sept. 16

After the past two weeks' selling there now remain odd lots, single pieces—some damaged slightly—some hardly damaged at all, others good as new. As the assortments are quite broken we have added many floor samples, stock pieces, shopworn, etc., that were not in our warehouse, but which will be big bargains, nevertheless. All this furniture, totaling several hundred pieces in all,

LOOPHOLES

By HOWARD NOBLE

"UNDER THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT any man who can raise a few dollars to pay for a still, can manufacture all the whiskey and brandy he cares to manufacture. The proposed Amendment might very properly be entitled: 'An Amendment to Legalize the Illicit Still in the United States'; it might well be entitled: 'An Act to Encourage the Manufacture of Intoxicating Drinks by Individuals.'"

This striking characterization of the Hobson Resolution, through which the Anti-Saloon League is seeking to secure nation-wide prohibition as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, was made by Congressman Pou of North Carolina on the floor of the House, at Washington, December 22, 1914.

High-Priced Agitators

Upon that same occasion Rep. Cantrill of Kentucky said: "There is in the land a great body of high-priced agitators, who are clamoring for national prohibition. The paid leaders have not dealt fairly with the great body of the people in the country. They have misled thousands of sincere, honest and God-fearing people into believing that this Resolution means prohibition, when in reality it means unrestricted manufacture of intoxicating liquors."

Rep. Barchfield of Pennsylvania, referring to a statement made by Mr. Hobson that nation-wide prohibition does not aim to destroy the inherent liberties of the people, said: "Possibly this has reference to the idea which the prohibitionists are now seeking to promulgate, that this constitutional prohibition will not prevent the individual citizen being his own distiller or brewer and making in his own home all the intoxicating beverages that he can manufacture for his own consumption and gifts to his friends. This does not deceive me, and only adds to my resentment against the colossal fraud which the advocates of this prohibition Amendment would commit in the name of temperance."

Co-operative Distilleries

There are other loopholes in the proposed Amendment. It is a general principle of law that an association may legally engage in any enterprise which the individual may pursue. Mr. Hobson and his friends frankly admit that the proposed Amendment would permit every citizen to manufacture liquors for private use; and it follows logically that an association of individuals might engage in co-operative brewing and distilling, provided the liquors were not sold but merely distributed among members. It is morally certain, therefore, that breweries and distilleries operated on the "association plan" would do a flourishing business under nation-wide "prohibition."

The Great Fallacy

And so with importing for "private use." Any citizen would be permitted to import liquors not intended for sale. It requires no stretch of the imagination to vision what would happen under such circumstances. We should see the northern section of our country importing by trainload from Canada and the southern section doing likewise from Mexico, where breweries and distilleries would spring up like mushrooms.

The case of nation-wide prohibition rests entirely upon the delusion that with the whole country "dry" no liquor could be procured. Any person of open mind must become convinced upon examination of the FACTS, that the exact opposite would be true. The masses would have access to unlimited quantities of raw distilled liquors, the sale of which would be conducted in dives of the lowest type. The well-to-do and rich would have their "importing clubs" by the thousands. Liquor would be everywhere, but nowhere would there be regulation or control.

"I agree with you in the opinion that a moderate use of light alcoholic beverages, as for instance beer, is not injurious to the health."—Prof. Karl von Voit, Munich.

URGE HARVARD PREPAREDNESS INSTRUCTION

"Preparedness" courses at Harvard are urged by the Crimson, in the issue out today. The Harvard paper publishes three editorials bearing on "preparedness," in which it says that a military department could well be added to Harvard's curriculum, and declares a four-years' study in such a department would turn out a group of military specialists. Excerpts from the editorials follow:

"Our statesmen at Washington are now at work on plans for national defence, but they are not the only ones able to help in this problem. Within the precincts of the university lies an opportunity for aiding the government. The conduct of war with its recent developments is largely an economic and financial problem of which the military side is merely incidental. Glaringly evident is the significance of intellectual effort on the part of officers in a modern army.

SUGGESTS COURSES.

"A military department might well be added to the curriculum. A course on strategy and tactics, another on the economics of war, and additional work on military history could be instituted. If a regular army officer with a recognized knowledge of modern warfare were obtained, practical courses in map manoeuvres could be given.

"For a man who, after taking a few introductory courses, wishes to specialize, advanced courses could be offered in chemistry dealing with high explosives, or in military engineering, or in economics taking up the financial and commissary side of maintaining armies.

"A further consideration would be the requirement of German and Spanish as allied subjects. A reading knowledge of German is necessary to enable one to study the writings of the German General Staff, the only authority on modern warfare.

VALUABLE TO NATION.

"If such a military department were instituted in the University, there would still be lacking the means of teaching a man the fundamentals of a military training. A Summer military camp such as those at Plattsburg would fit in well with the rest of the year's theorizing. Even a camp under the supervision of the university, but conducted by army officers, might be arranged.

"Whether this part of the program worked out successfully or not is of small consequence. The important fact is that a four years' study of military history and modern warfare as a background, with concentration in some particular field such as transportation, explosives or finance, would turn out a group of military specialists. These men would prove invaluable to the country in time of war."

Plan Paul Revere Bell Tower.

If present plans mature, the historic Paul Revere bell, sold to the town in 1815 by the revolutionary patriot, will have a permanent resting place in a stone tower to be erected on the public park by popular subscription.

MISS TILTON A DEBUTANTE

MISS BETTINA SAVAGE MAKES HER BOW TODAY

MISS BARBARA TILTON

She has just been elected a member of the Sewing Circle and is one of the most popular girls in the younger social set. Miss Tilton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Tilton of No. 38 Suffolk road, Brookline.

Activities among the debutantes of the Fall season indicate that Miss Barbara Tilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Tilton of No. 38 Suffolk road, Brookline, is one of the most popular of the group of girls who represent the younger social set.

Miss Tilton has been elected a member of the Sewing Circle for the year and has been a guest at a number of the debutante parties. Her own coming out parties will include nearly the entire group of debutantes.

She took part in the anti-suffrage fete, held at the Williams estate in Brookline, last June. She assisted, October 28, at the coming out party of Miss Margaret Bliss, and also at the debutante party of Miss Elizabeth Burrage, November 2.

o o o

The presentation of Miss Bettina Savage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Savage, comes today. She will make her bow to society in her home, No. 48 Highland avenue, Cambridge.

A dinner will be given the assisting party, after which the young people will be entertained at a dance at Brattle Hall, Cambridge.

Those who will pour at tea are: Miss Margaret Thayer, Miss Mabel Colgate, Miss Rosamond Elliott, Miss Barbara Tilske, Miss Hortense Sauveur, Miss Hester Brown, Miss Elizabeth Elliott, Miss Grace Richards, Miss Amy Brown, Miss Elizabeth Baker, Miss Priscilla White, Miss Eleanor Baldwin, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Miss Frances Darling, Miss Katherine Whittier, Miss Dorothy Winsor, Miss Adelaide Poor, Miss Dorothy Hildreth, Miss Frances Benedict, Miss Helen Cushing and Miss Leslie Cobb.

o o o

Mrs. Albert B. Whittier entertains at luncheon today in honor of Miss Catherine Whittier, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woodbury Whittier of Milton. The affair will be held at Mrs. Whittier's Commonwealth avenue home.

Miss Whittier has her formal introduction on November 24, when Mr. and Mrs. Whittier will give a dance at the Hotel Somerset.

o o o

An affair to which the debutantes are looking forward with happy anticipation is the dance which Mr. and Mrs. William C. Williams of Dedham are giving tomorrow evening at the Dedham Country and Polo Club in honor of their daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Rosamond Williams.

Acting as ushers for the dance are: William L. Williams, Benjamin B. Williams, Fessenden S. Blanchard, J. Phillip Barry, Frederic Putnam, B. Allyson Edwards, John W. Elliott, Robert Williams, Junius A. Richards, Harold Wright, D. H. Howell, Maynard and Charles B. Blanchard.

o o o

Cards are out for Miss Dorothy French Melcher's debut party. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldeury Melcher of Garrison road, Brookline. She will be presented at a large reception and dance at her Brookline home on December 4.

Miss Melcher has had much experience in European travel spending much time both in England and France. She was graduated from one of the private Back Bay schools, and is distinguished as a keen horsewoman and an expert judge of dogs.

o o o

Miss Florence Hind and Ernest A. Thompson of Cambridge, will be married today at noon, at Emmanuel Church. Miss Hind is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hind of Brookline, and Mr. Thompson is the son of William V. Thompson. The Rev. Elwood Worcester, rector of Emmanuel Church, will officiate.

The ceremony will be very simple with only the immediate members of the two families present.

After a wedding tour the couple will live at No. 34 Kilsyth road, Brookline.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membranes and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.—Advertisement.

TWELVE KILLED BY CYCLONE IN KANSAS

By International News Service.

HUTCHINSON, Kas., Nov. 11.—At least twelve persons were killed and 100 were injured in the cyclone that swept an area sixteen miles wide in the neighborhood of Great Bend, Kas. It is feared that from the towns of Derby, Pratt and Larned a greater loss of life may be reported.

One report from Great Bend stated that fifty-seven persons were killed. Telephone and telegraph wires were down early today and the report of greater loss of life could not be confirmed.

The property damage so far is estimated at $500,000.

Reports tell of heavy damage inflicted in Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa. Several persons were said to have been injured in Hartford, S. D.

In Great Bend the Santa Fe Railroad station was demolished. Three flour mills were twisted from their foundations and wrecked. A large grain elevator was damaged. A score of houses in a path three-fourths of a mile long were wrecked and many persons were caught in the debris.

Fires started in several parts of the city. The water plant of the city was out of commission and the fire department was helpless.

DANVILLE, Ill., Nov. 11.—A tornado that struck Hoopston today demolished part of the plant of the Malleable Iron Works. John Withers, aged forty-five, a workman, was killed and three other men were seriously injured.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—Moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected by careless, dandruff, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—then—real hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It gives right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair and lots of it if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed. For sale by Filter-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

TRIANGLE PLAYS FOR BOSTON!

It's only a matter of days, now, yes, HOURS, until the first of the TRIANGLE plays will have been seen by thousands of people throughout Boston.

They have been MONTHS in preparation.

All through the spring and summer, GRIFFITH, INCE and SENNETT have been hard at work, too, have been well-known actors and actresses enough to have kept Broadway ablaze for half a dozen seasons.

DE WOLF HOPPER was there—seventy-six inches of rollicking fun—end on end.

Beautiful BILLIE BURKE with all her charm.

DUSTIN FARNUM, strong and fine and more convincing than ever.

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK with his unruly blond hair and contagious smile.

LILLIAN and DOROTHY GISH—each equally sweet and lovely and lovable as the other.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS of Comedy street, the man who always makes you "glad you went" to the play.

GEORGE FAWCETT—whose wide, moist smile and merry eye is a week's vacation to "tired business men."

MAE MARSH, who is "beautiful even when she cries."

BOBBY HERRON—who probably has more friends than any man of his age on the American stage.

ROSZIKA DOLLY, who has danced her slim, graceful little self into the hearts of all theatregoers from coast to coast.

Is it surprising, with such collaboration, that GRIFFITH, producer of "The Birth of a Nation"; INCE, famous for "The Battle of Gettysburg"; SENNETT, creator of Keystone comedies, and the splendid directors working with them, should have outstripped anything ever imagined in the making of beautiful pictures?

YES—it has been a great summer.

But—

The time has come!

And now we announce the appearance of all these glittering stars in Boston.

Not today—not tonight—but very soon.

And where they will be seen will be kept a secret until, say SUNDAY, when the name of the theatre and all other details will be announced and your suspense will have been alleviated.

VENDETTA

An Extraordinary Tale of Love, Perfidy and Revenge.—By Marie Corelli. In Five Daily Instalments.

SYNOPSIS OF OPENING INSTALMENT.

COUNT FABIO ROMANI, a wealthy Neapolitan nobleman, who tells the story, esteems Guido Ferrari, an artist, as his best friend, until he loves at first sight and weds Nina, a convent-bred maiden. A girl is born to them.

In 1884 a cholera plague sweeps Naples. Count Fabio contracts the disease from a poor boy he tries to aid. He is taken by a monk into a restaurant, where he becomes unconscious, only to realize, when he revives, that he has been buried alive.

CHAPTER IV.
Freedom.

A FRENZY surpassing that of an infuriated tiger took possession of me—with hands and nails I tore and scratched at the accursed boards—with all the force of my arms and shoulders I toiled to wrench open the closed lid.

My efforts were fruitless. I grew more ferociously mad with rage and terror.

How easy were all deaths compared to one like this! I paused, gasping for breath. Then, suddenly nerving myself for one more wild effort, I hurled my limbs with all the force of agony and desperation against one side of my narrow prison. It cracked—it split asunder!—and then—a new and horrid fear beset me, and I crouched back, panting heavily.

If—if I were buried in the ground—so ran my ghastly thoughts—of what use to break open that coffin and let in the penetrating mold that would choke up my mouth and eyes, and seal me into silence forever!

But I could breathe more easily—even in the stupefaction of my fears—I was conscious of air. Yes!—the darkness air had rushed in somehow. Revived and encouraged as I recognized this fact, I felt with both hands till I found the crevice I had made, and then with frantic haste and strength I pulled and dragged at the wood, till suddenly the whole side of the coffin gave way, and I was able to force up the lid. I stretched out my arms—no weight of earth impeded their movements—I felt nothing but air—empty air.

I reaped out of the hateful box, and fell—fell some little distance, bruising my hands and knees on what seemed to be a stone pavement. Something wet fell also, with a dull crushing thud close to me. The darkness was impenetrable. But there was breathing room, and the atmosphere was cool and refreshing.

I Blessed the Frail Make of the Box.

I had certainly been buried alive—there was no doubt of that. Intense pain had, I suppose, resolved itself into a long trance of agony—and the people of the inn where I had been taken ill had at once believed me to be dead of cholera, and with the panic-stricken, indecent haste common in all Italy, especially at a time of plague, had thrust me into one of those flimsy coffins which were then being manufactured by scores in Naples—mere shells of thin deal, nailed together with chimney hurry and fear. But now I blessed their wretched construction.

Yet the question remained—Where was I? A reviewal my case from all points, and for some time could arrive at no satisfactory conclusion. Stay, though! I remembered that I had told the monk my name: he knew that I was the only descendant of the rich Romani family. What followed? Why, naturally, the good father had only done what his duty called upon him to do. He had seen me laid in the vault of my ancestors—the great Romani vault that had never been opened since my father's body was carried to its last resting-place with all the solemn pomp and magnificence of a wealthy nobleman's funeral obsequies.

And now I was a prisoner—with what hope of escape? I reflected. The entrance to the vault, I remembered, was barred by a heavy door of closely twisted iron—from thence a flight of steep steps led downward—downward to where in all probability I now was. Suppose I could in the dense darkness feel my way to these steps and climb up to that door—of what avail? It was locked—nay, barred—and as it was situated in a remote part of the burial ground, there was no likelihood of even the keeper of the cemetery passing by it for days—perhaps not for weeks. Then must I starve? Or die of thirst? Tortured by these imaginings, I rose up from the pavement and stood erect. My feet were bare, and the cold stone on which I stood chilled me to the marrow.

They had been roughly half-clothed for fear of infection. That is, I had on my flannel shirt and my usual walking trousers. Suspended from my neck by a gold chain was my locket, containing portraits of my wife and child.

Nina, my wife, and Stella, my baby girl. I drew out the locket and kissed the pictures. Life was worth living while Nina and Stella lightened the world. I resolved to fight for existence. I would find some way out of this grim tomb!

I traced my way through the darkness, as I thought, toward the stone stairway leading down into the vault. I came in contact with a coffin. I counted the ornamentations on it—eight bits lengthwise, four bits across. Whose coffin was this I considered. My father's—or was it my mother's?

I stumbled along. I fell. When I arose, I perceived a slender arrow of moonlight, slanting downward toward me. I had fallen at the very top—the lowest one, of the stairway. Utterly exhausted I slept.

The Coffin's Hoard—"The big coffin was literally packed and lined with incalculable wealth, gold coins, priceless gems, precious stones, silks, velvets, old lace, trays of solid gold and other valuables. I fingered the rich materials; all this treasure was mine. I had found it in my own burial vault."

Posed especially for the Boston AMERICAN by Lucius Fairchild (Count Fabio Romani) of the Gene-Fales Stock Company, now playing at the Grand Opera House.

CHAPTEPR V.
The Brigand's Hoard.

I MUST have slept some time. When I awakened I rushed to the top of the stairway and shook the iron grating that guarded the entrance. It called for help. All in vain.

Recovering myself, I retraced my steps downward and found on one of the steps one-half of a thick waxen taper, such as are used in our funeral rites.

I searched my pockets of my trousers. I found my purse and a small box of wax vestas. A fanciful idea struck me. I would go back and look at my own coffin.

I lighted the candle, which burned with steady flame. Down in the vault I found the apartment of square shape with high walls scooped out in niches to receive the coffins of my departed ancestors.

I beheld my own coffin—a frail enough shell—and those of my father and mother. As I knelt beside the latter I spied a jewelled pendant of pearl and brilliants. I looked in surprise to see from where such a valuable gem could have come.

I then noticed an unusually large coffin lying sideways on the ground; it appeared as if it had fallen suddenly and with force, for a number of loose stones and mortar were sprinkled near it. Holding the lamp close to the ground, I observed that a niche exactly below the one in which I had been laid was empty, and that a considerable portion of the wall there was broken away. I then remembered that when I had swooned so desperately out of my narrow box I had heard something fall with a crash beside me. This was the thing, then—this long coffin, big enough to contain a man seven feet high and broad in proportion.

My curiosity was excited, and I knelt close to examine the lid of this funeral chest. There was no name on it—no mark of any sort, save one—a dagger roughly painted in red. Here was a mystery! I resolved to penetrate it.

The huge coffin lay on its side, as I have said; its uppermost corner was splintered; I applied both hands to the work of breaking further asunder these already split portions. As I did so a leathern pouch or bag rolled out and fell at my feet. I picked it up and opened it—it was full of gold pieces. More excited than ever, I seized a large pointed stone, and by the aid of this extemporized instrument, together with the force of by own arms, hands, and feet, I managed, after some ten minutes' hard labor, to break open the mysterious casket.

When I had accomplished this deed I stared at the result like a man stupefied.

I looked upon a treasure worthy of an emperor's envy! The big coffin was literally lined and packed with incalculable wealth. Fifty large leathern bags tied with coarse cord lay uppermost; more than half of these were crammed with gold coins, the rest were full of priceless gems—necklaces, tiaras, bracelets, watches, chains and other articles of feminine adornment were mingled with loose precious stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds, and opals, some of unusual size and luster, some uncut, and some all ready for the jeweler's setting.

Beneath these bags were packed a number of pieces of silk, velvet, and cloth of gold, each piece being wrapped by itself in a sort of oil-skin, strongly perfumed with camphor and other spices. There were also three lengths of old lace, fine as gossamer, of matchless artistic design, in perfect condition. Among these materials lay two large trays of solid gold workmanship, most exquisitely engraved and ornamented, also four gold drinking-cups of quaint and massive construction.

Other valuables and curious trifles there were, such as an ivory statuette of Psyche on a silver pedestal, a waistband of coins linked together, a painted fan with a handle set in amber and turquois, a fine steel dagger in a jeweled sheath, and a mirror, framed in old pearls.

Last, but but not least, at the very bottom of the chest lay rolls upon rolls of paper money amounting to some millions of francs—in all far surpassing what I had myself formerly enjoyed from my own revenues.

I plunged my hands deep in the leathern bags; I fingered the rich materials; all this treasure was mine I had found it in my own burial vault! I had surely the right to consider it as my property? I began to consider—how could it have been placed there without my knowledge? The answer to this question occurred to me at once. Brigands! Of course—what a fool I was not to have thought of them before! the dagger painted on the lid of the chest should have guided me to the solution of the mystery. A red dagger was the recognized sign manual of a bold and dangerous brigand named Carmelo Neri, who, with his reckless gang, haunted the vicinity of Palermo.

And I meditated for some minutes on this strange affair. If, indeed—and I say no reason to doubt it—I had chanced to find some of the spoils of the redoubable Neri, this great chest must have been brought over by sea from Palermo. Probably four stout rascals had carried the supposed coffin in a mock solemn procession, under the pretense of its containing the body of a comrade. These thieves have a high sense of humor.

Yet the question remained to be solved—How had they gained access to my ancestral vault, unless by means of a false key. All at once I was left in darkness. My candle went out as though blown upon by a gust of air. I had my matches, and of course could easily light it again, but I was puzzled to imagine the cause of its sudden extinction. I looked about me in the temporary gloom and saw, to my surprise, a ray of light proceeding from a corner of the very niche where I had fixed the candle between two stones.

I approached and put my hand to the place; a strong draught blew through a hole large enough to admit the passage of three fingers. I quickly relighted my torch, and examining this hole and the back of the niche attentively, found that four blocks of granite had been removed and their places supplied by thick square logs cut from the trunks of trees. These logs were quite loosely fitted. I took them out easily one by one, and then set upon a close pile of brushwood. As I gradually cleared this away a large aperture disclosed itself wide enough for any man to pass through without trouble.

In two minutes I stood outside the vault on the soft grass, with the high arch of heaven above me, and the broad Bay of Naples glittering deliciously before my eyes! I was free!

CHAPTER VI.
Worse Than All.

I WAS free to return to life, to love, to the arms of my beautiful Nina.

What did I not owe to Carmelo Neri, the glorious ruffian! For it was evident he had contrived this cunning secret passage to the Romani vault.

The poor wretch was in hiding with a price on his head. Well, the authorities should get no aid from me, even if I should discover his whereabouts. Never should I betray him? Thus thinking, I re-entered the vault.

I regained all the treasures I had discovered, taking for the present only a bag of gold and another of jewels. I already had a few francs in my purse, enough to buy decent clothing of some sort.

Then, climbing once more through the aperture, I closed it and covered the logs with brushwood, so that not the least hint of the opening appeared from the outside. Nothing more to do but go to the city. Once there, I could obtain food and clothes and then hasten home.

The cemetery was on the outskirts of Naples. I struck off toward the city by a sloping road. I was weak, but happy.

I met a fruit pedler, who sold me a few grapes and, at the same time, displayed greatest alarm at my appearance. Wondering at his terror, I walked along until I came to a second-hand clothing store, a wretched shop kept by a wrinkled old man. When I asked to see some clothing—explaining that I had lost some of mine on a long journey—the old man cackled shrilly and said:

"Do you not fear the plague, the foolish plague? Only yesterday it took away one of the richest men in the neighborhood, young, strong and brave. The plague touched him in the morning. Before sunset he was nailed up and put down in his big family vault. A stupid thing the plague did when it took Count Fabio Romani."

I started, but controlled myself and asked: "Who was he?"

"Who was he?" echoed the shriveled old dealer: "you have not heard of the rich Romani? I have seen him often. He was bold and clever and good to the poor. But his wife—Pah! The fair, soft thing. I hate his wife. Now he is dead and that she-devil has it all."

I wondered at his raving this way against Nina. Evidently he hated all youth and beauty. But, if he had seen me often, why did he not know me now?

"What sort of looking man was this Count Romani?" I asked him as a test. He replied:

"A beautiful man, straight as you are. But your eyes are sunken and dim. His were large and bright. His hair was glossy black, as black, my friend, as your hair is white."

I recoiled. Was I, indeed, so changed. My hair white. I could not believe it. Perhaps Nina would not recognize me. But then, I could easily prove my identity. The old man rambled on:

"The Countess Romani laughed once when her carriage knocked me down. She is like what my wife was. Oh, yes, I have known love. I know, too, that God had very little to do with the making of women. Yes, yes—I know. I will tell you."

The strange creature told me that in his youth he married a beautiful girl of honest, smiling face. But he surprised her in guilty love with a handsome Venetian street singer.

"He saw me," the old man went on, "and sprung at my throat—I held him down and knelt on his chest—she awoke and raised upon us, too terrified to speak—she only shivered and made a little moaning sound. I found her sweetheart hard and foot. Then I took my knife and went to her. Her bluo eyes glazed, wide—imploringly she turned them upon me—and ever she saw her sweetheart cried in agony—her heart's blood welled up in a crimson tide, staining the bright hue of the white garments she wore; she flung up her arms and died. I drew the knife from her body, and with it cut the bonds that held the Venetian youth. He had me arrested, but I was acquitted —extenuating circumstances, the judge said. The judge knew. He had a wife of his own. Now you know why I hate that dainty, jewelled creature up at the Villa Romani. She was just like that other one—the one I slew."

I felt sorry for the crazed wretch. He hated all women. I ordered him to get me some clothes. He fitted me out with a coral fisher's costume, which would do me until I reached home.

I looked at myself in a mirror. The dealer was right. I was old. Twenty years of suffering would not have changed me more. My illness had thinned my face. My eyes were sunken. I had a certain wildness of expression. To crown it all, my hair was perfectly white. I now understand the alarm of the fruit-seller on the highway. Would my wife know me? Indeed, I scarcely recognized myself.

I put on the garments I had bought and walked along, glad to get away from the cracked-brain old dealer. I came to the inn where I had been taken ill. Pietro, the landlord, did not know me. I learned, to my great sorrow, that the monk who had aided me when I was seized with the plague had himself died of the cholera. He had taken my watch, ring and cigar-case to my house and had been stricken just after that. Pietro—to whom I did not reveal my identity, added that the Countess Romani had swooned on being told of her husband's death.

I spent the day in unfrequented streets and at evening went up toward my home. My heart swelled as I walked along. I planned to enter the grounds by the avenue that led to the back of the villa, to call for Assunta, the old nurse who had charge of little Stella, and break the news to her so she could prepare Nina for the shock and joy of my returning from the dead.

I went along carefully through the dark trees. Suddenly I heard light laughter. It was my wife's laugh. I stepped from the path and screened myself behind dense foliage.

Two figures slowly approached—my wife and my friend, Guido Ferrari. Did I see aright—was she simply leaning on his arm for support—or—I choked back a fierce oath—Oh, would to God that I had died, that I had never broken forth from my coffin!

The third installment of "Vendetta" will appear in tomorrow's Boston AMERICAN.

Evan Williams, Tenor, Gives Song Recital

Evan Williams, the tenor, gave a song recital last night in Jordan Hall. For him Bostonians have a warm place in their hearts, and he was greeted by applause that brought him again and again to the stage after his song groups.

Mr. Williams' program gave splendid opportunity for the merit of his voice. There was pleasing variety in his choice compositions, and a unity that was the result of singing which was never mediocre, but always sincere and captivating.

There were many brilliant periods, such as his Beethoven group, and his superb handling of Mozart's "Veilchen." Of Beethoven he sang "O'er the Purple Crested Mountains," "On the Cliffs or in the Caves," "Lark That Sings," "O Would That My True Love Were Here," "The Spring is Here Singing and Wake Thy Love."

There was a group of songs by Hugo Wolf. Other of his selections were Schubert's beautiful "Thy Wave Are Peace," Grieg's "Swan Song" and songs by Rubinstein, Schumann, Dvorak, Brahms and Bruno Huhn.

The tenor, always good, was never better. He has a fine accompanist in Carl Bernthaler. To hear Mr. Williams once is to want to hear him again.

WHITE RATS WILL FIGHT FOR ACTORS

Addressing a meeting of the Boston branch of the White Rats Actors' Union of America, District Deputy Geoffrey L. Whalen predicted that by the first of the new year practically all of the vaudeville actors playing in Greater Boston would be sufficiently organized to demand and obtain an improvement of working conditions.

National Organizer Harry Mountford was the principal speaker, and after his spirited address scores of those present were enrolled.

Mr. Mountford launched an indictment of what he termed the unjust treatment of the members of the profession by Boston managers. Reductions in salaries, which, the workers say, have been general and frequent of late, the sudden cancellation without proper cause of contracts, demands on the part of managers for unpaid extra work by the players—all these matters came in for severe arraignment.

Mr. Mountford pointed out the advantages of unionization and the desirability of the strength such action would give the players in their efforts to put a send to conditions of which they complain.

BROKE HIMSELF OF SMOKING CIGARETTES

A St. Louis Man Broke Himself of Smoking Cigarettes and Chewing by a Simple Home Remedy.

Harry Risks, a well known resident living at 2016 S. 11th St., broke himself of the cigarette habit and chewing with a simple recipe that he mixed at home, in reply to the question as to what he used he made the following statement: "I used a simple recipe which I mixed at home and which is as follows: To 3 oz. of water add 10 grains of Mariette of Ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grs. of Pepsin. I took a teaspoonful three times a day. Any druggist can mix it for you at very little cost.

This recipe can be taken yourself or given secretly to another in coffee, tea or milk or in food, as it has no taste, color or smell and is perfectly harmless."

BEST LIVER AND BOWEL LAXATIVE FOR FAMILY USE

"Cascarets" regulate women, men and children without injury.

Take when bilious, headachy, for colds, bad breath, sour stomach.

Instead of nasty, harsh pills, salts, castor oil or dangerous calomel, why don't you keep Cascarets handy in your home? Cascarets act on the liver and thirty feet of bowels so gently you don't realize you have taken a cathartic, but they act thoroughly and can be depended upon when a good liver and bowel cleaning is necessary—they move the bile and poisons from the bowels without griping, and sweeten the stomach. You eat one or two at night like candy and you wake up feeling fine, the headache, biliousness, bad breath, coated tongue, sour stomach, constipation or bad cold disappear. Mothers should give cross, sick, feverish or bilious children a whole Cascaret any time—they are harmless and safe for the little folks.—Advertisement.

MILLIONS USE IT TO STOP A COLD

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe cold or grippe in few hours.

Relief comes instantly.

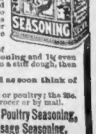
A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine. For sale by Riker-Jaynes and all reliable druggists.—Advertisement.

BELL'S SEASONING

Used and Endorsed By Hotels, Clubs, Restaurants and Families to Flavor Dressings for Turkey, Chicken, Game, Meats and Fish.



SPICED BEEF. Chop 2 pounds fresh beef, enough to fill 4 cups. Soak 2 slices bread, either toasted or plain, in 1½ cups of milk, and add to the raw beef. Cut fine 2 slices of fat salt pork, and add to beef, together with 2 even teaspoons salt, and 2 even teaspoons Bell's Seasoning. Place in a buttered pan. Cut a piece of butter the size of an egg in small pieces, and distribute over the top. Bake 1½ hours in moderate oven.

DELICIOUS HOME MADE SAUSAGE. To each pound of fresh, lean pork add 1 heaped tablespoon of Bell's Poultry Seasoning and 1½ even teaspoons salt. Sprinkle over the meat, cut fine, thoroughly mix to a stiff dough, then make into cakes and fry.

One of Boston's noted hotel keepers has said, "I would as soon think of discharging my chef, as to do without Bell's Seasoning."

REMEMBER, 10c, can will flavor the dressing for 100 lbs. meat or poultry; the 25c. can, 300 lbs. Bell's Booklet of valuable Cooking Recipes at your grocer or by mail.

For delicious Sausage flavor as directed, either with Bell's Spiced Poultry Seasoning, Bell's New England Sausage Seasoning, or Bell's White Sausage Seasoning.

BROWN HELD IN M'FADDEN DEATH CASE

BROCKTON, Nov. 11.—John Brown was held without bail for the Grand Jury today on a charge of murdering William H. McFadden, whose body was found, October 31, in Skimmilk Creek, West Bridgewater.

A dozen witnesses, three of them women, were sworn by the government, but only five were heard. Alice Billis, formerly a sweetheart of Brown, and Mrs. Ethel Sears, who was McFadden's housekeeper, were sworn but were not called upon to testify.

A dramatic feature of the hearing was when Edward R. Wilbur, a West Bridgewater lawyer, identified Brown as the man he had seen with McFadden a few hours before the finding of McFadden's body.

Wilbur was the third witness to testify. He told of having been accosted by a man who carried a single-barrel shotgun, outside the home of Jules Dolbec, the day of the tragedy. He said he saw McFadden leaning on a stone wall across the street. "Have you seen this man since?" asked District Attorney Barker.

"Yes," said Wilbur.

"Is he here?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In the dock," said Wilbur, pointing to Brown.

Brown, sitting beside Constable Davenport, was apparently unaffected by the identification. He looked calmly at the witness.

Wilbur was preceded by Calvin E. Pratt and Medical Examiner A. Elliott Paine. Pratt told of the discovery of the body. He was with his wife in an automobile when attracted by blood on Skimmilk bridge. He looked into the water and saw the body. This was about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, October 31.

Medical Examiner Paine testified that McFadden had been dead about two hours when he saw the body. He declared that the wound in McFadden's head was caused by a solid mass of shot, and that the muzzle of the gun could not have been more than four feet away when the shot was fired.

A-K Tablets for Various Forms Of Headache

"It is necessary in order to treat headaches properly to understand the causes which produce the affection" says Dr. J. W. Kay of Stockton, Ala. Continuing, he says: "Physicians cannot even begin the treatment of a disease without knowing what causes give rise to it, and we must remember that headache is to be treated according to the same rule. We cannot do only to partially relieve a remedy intended to counteract the cause which produces the headache, but we must also give a remedy to relieve the pain and the cause of the headache be removed. To answer this purpose Anti-kamnia Tablets will be found a most convenient and satisfactory remedy. One tablet every one, two or three hours gives comfort and rest in the most severe cases of headaches, neuralgia and particularly the headaches of women."

Whenever an unaccustomed or unusually severe attacks of sick headache, we should caution her to keep his bowels regular, for which nothing is better than "Acticida," and when he feels the least sign of an oncoming attack, he should take two A-K Tablets. Such patients should always be instructed to carry a few Anti-kamnia Tablets, so as to have them ready for instant use. These tablets are prompt in action, and can be depended on to produce relief in a very few minutes. Ask for A-K Tablets.

Anti-kamnia Tablets can be obtained at all druggists.

Miss Florence Hind, whose marriage to E. A. Thompson took place today in Emmanuel Church.

A wedding of interest to Brookline and Cambridge people was that today of Miss Florence Hind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Hind of No. 160 Francis street, Brookline, to Ernest A. Thompson, son of William V. Thompson of Cambridge.

The ceremony took place at noon in the Emmanuel Church, Newbury street, the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester officiating. The bride had no attendants. Chester E. Thompson of Framingham was best man. After a honeymoon trip the couple will live at No. 34 Kilsyth road, Brookline.

'Jerry' Watson Loses His First Case in Court

City Councillor James A. Watson fought his first case at the bar of justice today—and lost it.

Though not a lawyer, Watson was allowed to defend four youths in the Roxbury Court before Judge Ahern. The defendants were John Hazelbrook, William Fitzgerald, James Coleman and Alfred DeCoursey, each about twenty, all of whom were accused of loitering at the corner of Huntington avenue and Francis street.

After finding the youths guilty and imposing a $5 fine on each, Judge Ahern said to Watson:

"You have resorted to every ingenuity known to the expert politician in presenting your case, and have even extended in some cases the most expert lawyer."

After noting an appeal on behalf of the accused, Watson went to the bench and said he thought the Judge's use of "expert politician" might be misconstrued by some persons.

"What I said I meant in the most complimentary way," said the Judge.

Fishermen Hook a Seal Off Plymouth

Using hook and line isn't the usual way of catching seal, but Samuel and Joseph Scola, fishermen, today brought to Boston in their powerboat a seal which they hooked off Plymouth and captured after quite a struggle. The seal, of a mongrel gray type, was hailed by a herring wriggling on a hook. When the Scolas drew up their catch they saw the seal flapping at the end of a line.

$25,000,000 NEW MUNITIONS MERGER

A "munitions merger" has been formed in Boston under the leadership of Ralph B. Phillips of this city, according to the Boston News Bureau today. It is stated that the merger is to be incorporated under the laws of Delaware as The Phillips Corporation with a capitalization of $25,000,000. The News Bureau adds:

"The new company is to be a holding company. The operating companies will continue to be run separately with but few if any changes in their individual officials. It has now been determined that the American Steam Gauge & Valve Manufacturing Company, Boston; R. B. Phillips Manufacturing Company, Worcester and Lowell; Windsor Machine Company, Windsor, Vt.; National Acme Manufacturing Company, Cleveland and Montreal, and White Mountain Paper Company, Portsmouth, N. H., which will be renamed the New England Steel & Ordnance Company, are to be the companies making up the new enterprise. It is planned ultimately to develop the Portsmouth plant into a large ordnance and shipbuilding enterprise.

"In an important sense, the Phillips Corporation will be a New England enterprise, as all of its plants, which will require some 7,000 employes, are located in New England, with the one exception of the Acme, employing about 1,500. Unfilled orders booked, without cancelation clauses and all believed to provide for a substantial margin of profit, are officially stated to amount to some $60,000,000 gross, with deliveries extending to January 31, 1917.

"They include French shell-casing; Russian shells, English shell-fuses, and orders for machinery and shell copper bands totaling several million dollars. The management expects to book further large orders in the near future. All the orders are to be filled at the constituent plants.

"Ralph B. Phillips is to be president of the new company, and Lloyd H. Atkinson, formerly of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is to be vice-president in New York."

Mayor Guest of the Highway Association

Mayor Curley, J. Lewis Ellsworth, president of the Worcester Chamber of Commerce, and H. N. Davidson, secretary of the same association, were guests today at the quarterly meeting and banquet of the Massachusetts Highway Association at the American House.

Previous to the banquet three members of the association were appointed a committee to present to the Legislature a bill requiring all highway engineers, street superintendents, highway contractors to come under the civil service.

Jail and Fines for Husband and Wife

Patrick Shea of Banks street, Cambridge, in the Cambridge District Court today was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in the East Cambridge House of Correction on charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. His wife, Catherine, on the same charges, was fined $100 and sentenced to serve three months in jail. Both appealed and each was held in $400.

Mormons Reported Captured Are Safe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Three American Mormons, members of an American colony in Northern Sonora, who were reported as being held captives by Villa, crossed into the United States at Naco two nights ago and departed for El Paso by train, the State Department was advised this afternoon. The men were named Whipple, Sterling and Hatch.

AUTO MEN TEST REGISTRATION FEE LAW

The Automobile Legal Association has decided to test the validity of the Massachusetts law requiring owners of automobiles to pay a registration fee in excess of that which is necessary to defray the expense of their registration, on the ground that since the license fee amounts to a tax it is unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts has decided that the law requiring the registration of automobiles is constitutional, but at the time that action was decided (1903) the registration fee was $2, and the amount of the fee paid was not before the court for decision.

The revenue derived by the State of Massachusetts from the registration fees of automobiles amounts to approximately $1,000,000 annually, and the expenses of registering is said to not exceed $150,000.

During the past few years there has been a growing tendency on the part of the Legislature to make a still further increase in the registration fees. The registration fees of automobile trucks have already been raised, and recently a recess committee of the Legislature has prepared a recommendation for a substantial increase in the registration fees of pleasure automobiles.

William A. Thibodeau, general counsel of the association, was selected to operate an unregistered automobile in Boston. He was summoned to court by Officer Haslett of the Columbus avenue automobile squad. At the hearing of the case, Mr. Thibodeau was found guilty and the court imposed a small fine, from which an appeal was taken. The case will be fought through the courts.

Kills Wife and Self in New York Hotel

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—A man who registered as H. C. Ruppert of Richmond, Va., killed his wife and then committed suicide in their suite of rooms at the McAlpin Hotel today. Ruppert was forty years old. He used a revolver for the double tragedy. Ruppert is supposed to be wealthy and connected with a prominent Virginia family.

The Mystery of Petra

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE strangest city in the world is Petra, cut out of solid rock in a lonesome mountain valley in the Arabian desert. Once a rich city, it is now an abandoned ruin. It is so old that its origin is lost to history, but it was well known in early Bible times when the Edomites inhabited it, and about a century after the beginning of the Christian Era it was conquered by the Romans. But a few centuries later it was abandoned by civilization and for 1,500 years it lay forgotten by the world until the travelled Burckhardt rediscivered it in 1812.

Si inaccessible is its situation, although it once lay on a trade route, that not more than fifty travellers are known to have visited since Burckhardt's time. The latest of these is Donald McLeish, the Scotchman who was there last June, and the photograph shows some of the wonderful sights he saw in this unique city of civilized troglidytes.

No romancer ever conceived such a place. All around are barren mountains, rocky, wild and treeless. Beyond the mountains stretches the desert. A savage glen deepens into a long, narrow gorge, with perpendicular walls one or two hundred feet in height. Following this ravine for two miles, the adventurous traveller suddenly finds himself at a kind of gateway in the rocks, like the entrance to a Roman amphitheatre.

Here he is confronted by a temple cut in the rock, with the most exquisite Corinthian columns, and entering the doorway he finds himself in the heart of the hill, surrounded by subterranean architecture of the most elaborate beauty of form and workmanship. This is the so-called Khasneh, or treasury, supposed to have been built by the Roman Emperor Hadrian, who visited Petra in the year 131 A. D. Although called treasury, it was a temple devoted to Isis. No description of this strange building has ever excelled that given by Stephens, the first American traveller to see it:

"The whole temple, its columns, ornaments, portticos and porches are cut out from and form a part of the solid rock; and this rock, at the foot of which the temple stands like a mere print, towers several hundred feet above, its face cut smooth to the very summit and the top remaining wild and misshapen, as nature made it. Neither the Colisseum at Rome, grand and interesting as it is, nor the ruins of the Acropolis at Athens, nor the Pyramids, nor the mighty temples of the Nile, are so often present to my memory."

But this is only an introduction to the marvels behind. The gorge opens out into a narrow valley, some three miles in circumference, everywhere sunk deep beneath the enclosing mountains, and the walls of this valley are filled with the remains of other rock-cut temples, tombs and dwelling places. In one place are the remains of an open-air theatre. Some of the structures, cut in the face of the rock, are several stories in height, while their architectural details excite the wondering admiration of the beholder.

Of course they seem immensely, in the eyes of the surprised visitor by their situation and by the air of total abandonment which surrounds them. They are at various heights above the floor of the valley and the uplifting of the eyes turned to study them adds to the impression of lonely majesty which they make upon them.

It is rare to meet any human being in the place. Sometimes a few Arabs are seen, but at night the voices of wolves, hyenas, owls and jackals may be heard, and occasionally one of these animals may be surprised lurking in the dark interior of an open tomb. Large venomous serpents are also sometimes met with.

It is not surprising that some visitors have applied to Petra, which has been supposed to be the Selah of the Bible, the curses uttered by the Hebrew prophets against the land of Idumea, such as these: "And thorns shall come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in the fortresses thereof, and it shall be a habitation for dragons and a court for owls," or "Oh, thou that dwellest in the clefts of the rocks, that holdest the height of the hill, though thou shouldst make thy nest as high as the eagle, I will bring thee down from thence, saith the Lord."

Make Your Hair Curly and Wavy Over Night!

To curl the hair without at the same time burning the life out of it, nothing equals plain tissue almonds. If a little be applied to the hair with a clean tooth brush before retiring it will be found to effect imagicable curl. No evidence in the morning but it will also be found an excellent dressing for the hair.

This simple method is not to be compared with curling by means of a hot iron because, instead of injuring the hair, it is really beneficial. A few ounces of the liquid, which may be procured at any drug store, will last for months. One can curl the hair in any style desired and the effect will be one of perfect naturalness. The best way is to divide the hair into strands and moisten each of them from root to tip. The hair will be beautifully glossy, yet without the least greasiness or stickiness.—Advertisement.

Relief from Indigestion

The misery of poor health due to poor digestion can be relieved. If you have sour stomach, griping pains, rumbling of bowels and trembling limbs, take two teaspoonfuls of rheumazalte in half a glass of water every morning before breakfast.

It is absolutely unnecessary for you to be bothered with indigestion, for any druggist will supply you with a package of rheumazalte, which will last some time, as it is very inexpensive, and you will be able to digest your food in a perfect manner. Nausea is eliminated and this delightful, afterward, taste is delicious and all that is needed.—Advertisement.

DEAR Children:

This has been the most WONDERFUL day.

It opened threateningly, as the Weather Man might say, but it promises to end GLORIOUSLY.

To begin with, the roof of our dining-room was leaking.

Now, rain is all right to do the washing in, and to fill the ponds and rivers, or refreshen the parched earth, but, in my opinion, it does NOT help one's porridge.

I called Mr. Thomas Thomas, our landlord, over the telephone, or at least I TRIED to—Thomas Thomas, as I explained the other day is none other than Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son—but HE appeared to be out of town.

Hastily moving the breakfast table over into the living room, so that Martha, Peter, Baby Bob and Nurse might have their meal in comfort, I took my umbrella and stepped out into Pond Lily Lane.

The only person in sight was a beautiful young lady, with the loveliest blue eyes and golden hair.

"Cinderella!" I called.

"Why, Mr. Sunshine!" said Cinderella, for it was indeed she, "where are you going and what is that funny looking thing on the stick, that you hold over your head?"

"I don't know WHERE I am going, my dear," I said to her, "but THIS is an umbrella, to keep the rain off."

"O," she said, "IS it raining? I hadn't noticed."

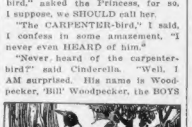
And then I observed that she was as dry as a codfish. This puzzled me greatly, at the time, but my soul was so worried about the leaky roof that I proceeded immediately to the business in hand. This, I believe, is a WAY I have.

"What I want, Cinderella," I said, "is the address of a competent person to repair our roof." And I explained my difficulties.

"Why not call in the carpenter-bird," asked the Princess, for so, I suppose, we SHOULD call her.

"The CARPENTER-bird," I said, I confess in some amazement, "I never even HEARD of him."

"Never heard of the carpenter-bird?" said Cinderella. "Well, I AM surprised. His name is Woodpecker, 'Bill' Woodpecker, the BOYS



call him, and you'll find his shop in Oak street. O, Dear! If I ONLY had my coach here I should be glad to take you in and drive you there directly."

And now happened one of the most MARVELLOUS things I have ever seen in the Land of Make-Believe.

"I believe," said Cinderella, "I had better WISH for a coach and four!"

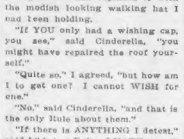
"Much good THAT will do," said I, impatiently. Come! let us step around to the corner of Oak street, and you can point out the shop of Mr. Woodpecker."

"AH!" said Cinderella, "thou art INDEED a man of little faith. Wait! and see what a successful little WISHER I am. Will you hold my hat, please?"

She was removing her hat pins even as she spoke, and in a jiffy I was standing there in Pond Lily Lane, right out in the middle of the street, holding the walking hat of a beautiful young woman.

Cinderella drew from somewhere beneath her coat a cap, quite like a boy's cap, the like of which I had never seen.

Motioning me to be still, she placed this cap upon her golden locks and then said, slowly and distinctively:



"I WISH I HAD A COACH AND FOUR."

At that moment I distinctly heard horses, directly behind me, prancing about as if nervously desiring to be away again.

"Step in," said Cinderella, and I looked about to behold a wonderful gilt coach, with an interior of rose-colored satin. The horses were coal black.

I stepped in, still somewhat bewildered, and Cinderella, having stopped to give the bewhiskered coachman an address in Oak street, followed after. The wonderful cap was soon out of sight again. My young friend had replaced it with the modish looking walking hat I had been holding.

"If YOU only had a wishing cap, you see," said Cinderella, "you might have repaired the roof yourself."

"Quite so," I agreed, "but how am I to get one? I cannot WISH for one."

"No," said Cinderella, "and that is the only Rule about them."

"If there is ANYTHING I detest," said I, "it is a Rule. I HATE them!"

"So do I," said Cinderella, "but the Rule is that one must NEVER lend his Wishing Cap."

"You MIGHT put it on," I ventured, "and wish a Wishing Cap for ME."

Cinderella laughed. "I have tried that," she said, "and it didn't work. One can wish, and wish, and WISH, until Little Bo-Peep's sheep come home, and one can never wish a Wishing Cap onto the head of another. That seems to be ANOTHER Rule."

"CONFOUND the old Rules!" said I.

We were now at the door of Mr. Woodpecker's shop. "Shall I wait?" asked Cinderella.

"I wish you MIGHT," I said, "I should like to talk further to you about the Wishing Cap and how to GET one."

My business with the carpenter being soon arranged, I stepped back into the gilt coach again, and on the way to Cinderella's palace, I learned the Great Secret.

What it IS, and how much GOOD it is likely to do for me, I shall tell you tomorrow. Perhaps SOME day, I can find a way to get a Wishing Cap for every little boy and every little girl in the great Sunday AMERICAN family.

And now, let me SEE. Today is WHAT day? Thursday? Only three days more and Martha will be with my dear Mamma, at YOUR house. Her dresses, Cinderella tells me, are lovelier than any that were seen at the ball.

"Indeed," says Cinderella. "If Martha had been AT that ball, and were a few years OLDER, I am very much afraid the world would never have heard of little Cinderella at all."

But this, of course, was mere PUFFYGUFF. Cinderella is the most GENEROUS girl, I DO believe, that ever did LIVE.

RECIPE TO STOP DANDRUFF

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff and Falling Hair and Aids Its Growth.

To a half pint of water add:

Bay Rum	1 oz.
Barbo Compound	a small box
Glycerine	¼ oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used. A half-pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, and relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

Star of My Night

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(This picture attracted the attention of the brilliant Ella Wheeler Wilcox. She sends to be published with it, the verses which you will read here):

THE day has the sun
In the skies of blue;
The night has the stars,
And I have you
Sun of my daytime

And star of my night,
Life is all beautiful,
Earth is a-light—
All things are right.

What You See in the Moon

Many Nations Have Theories About the Dark Spots on Its Shining Face

EVERY night, all over the world when there is a full moon, there are sure to be thousands of curious eyes turned skyward and thousands of curious lips asking what the dark spots on the earth's satellite are.

In eastern Asia the spots are believed to be a rabbit, the Chinese look upon them as a hare sitting up and pounding rice in a mortar. Most of the Slavic nations take the same view.

The North American Indians have almost the same superstition as the Chinese; and an old monuments in Central America the moon appears as a jug or vessel out of which an animal like a rabbit is jumping.

The South American Indians, on the other hand, believe that a girl who had fallen in love with the moon, sprang upward, was caught and it is her figure which is seen on the moon's face.

The Samoa islanders look on the spots as representing a woman carrying a child; and many other southern peoples have similar beliefs, the woman and child sometimes being altered into an old woman bearing a burden on her back.

The Eskimos say that one day Aniga, the moon, chased his sister, the sun, in wrath: just as he was about to catch her, however, she suddenly turned around and threw a great handful of soot in his face, and thus escaped him: and of that soot he bears the traces to this day.

The Dakota Indians have it that she is eaten up by mice; the Polynesian superstition is that the souls of the dead feed on her; according to the Hottentots, the moon suffers from headache, and, when it gets very bad she hides her head with her hand and covers up her face from the gaze of the world; the Eskimos maintain that after shining for three weeks she gets tired and hungry, and withdraws to take one enormous meal, after their own fashion, and then reappears and begins to shine again.

TODAY'S BEAUTY HINTS

To whiten and beautify the complexion permanently we have found no better preparation than a lotion made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in a half pint of hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This removes any pimples, shiny, muddy or sallow appearance, and will make anyone's skin clear, smooth and velvety. It does not show or rub off like powder; it is, in fact, a part of the skin and for removing tan and freckles is unequaled.

It is necessary to shampoo more frequently in the warmer weather because of excessive dust and the fact that the head perspires more and is usually more exposed to the weather. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers can be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of cantrinx, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as very beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing, the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BE TACTFUL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady nineteen years of age, deeply in love with a young man three years my senior. Although he has given me reason to believe that he likes me, and is also in a position of marry, yet he has never encouraged me in that light. Now, he had a friend who seems to be exceedingly interested in his personal affairs, from he is guided by. This friend wishes him to meet a wealthy young lady with the intention of having him marry her. This would break my heart. My friend does not live near me, and I see him very little, therefore do not know of his actions in regard to above party. Please advise me how I should act in this case, and you will greatly ease

A BREAKING HEART.

THERE is nothing you can do directly, especially since he has not mentioned marriage. To appear to pursue him would surely drive him from you. You can only be as charming and attractive as possible when you see him. Find out what interests him and show an interest in the same things, but without letting him see that you have any object in doing so.

THE ENGAGED GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My daughter has been engaged for seven months. Just after their engagement her friend left for the south. They correspond. The other day she went on a stage, riding with a young man who she says is of good character when she got home I told her it was not right of her to go out with other men when she was engaged. Was I right or wrong? MOTHER.

YOU were right in principle. Your daughter should not accept attentions from other men during her finance's absence. But there is no harm in taking a little ride in a public conveyance if the man who accompanied your daughter knew of her engagement and merely offered her a little entertainment in a friendly spirit.

Wanted the Thermometer

"Doctor, what will you take for that thing?"

THOUGHT SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unionville, Mo.—"I suffered from a female trouble and I got so weak that I could hardly walk across the floor without holding on to something. I had nervous spells and my fingers would cramp and my face would draw, and I could not speak nor sleep to do any good, had no appetite and felt as if everyone thought I would not live. Some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had taken so much medicine and my doctor said he could do me no good, so I told my husband he might get me a bottle and I would try it. By the time I had taken it I felt better. I continued its use, and now I am well and strong.

"I have always recommended your medicine since I know how wonderfully benefitted by it and I hope this letter will be the means of saving some other poor woman from suffering."—Mrs. Martha Seaver, Box 1144, Unionville, Missouri.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as that above—they tell the truth, else they could not have published it for the money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For over thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

Made Standard by the French Government

The French Government ordered 200,000 boxes of Cadum ointment for use in its Army and Navy, which is indisputable evidence of its high character. The formula from which it is made thus meets the requirements of the War and Health Departments of France, and Cadum becomes one of the standard remedies of the world. Cadum ointment is wonderful's soothing and healing to an inflamed, irritated or diseased skin, and has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting skin troubles. It stops the irritation and itching at once, and begins healing with the first application. Obstinate cases of eczema, sores, eruptions, rashes, chafings and other skin disorders usually yield to its curative properties. Trial box, 10c.; large box, 25c. —Advertisement.

SCOTT NEARING POINTS WAY TO WORKERS

Professor Scott Nearing, who was denied reappointment by the trustees of the University of Pennsylvania because of his radical views, came to Boston today to address the City Club tonight on "Public Opinion."

He declared to the AMERICAN that the American workingman is losing ground and that if he is to properly paid for his labor and receive his rights he must advertise his cause. Dr. Nearing praised the L. W. W. for advertising their cause and said the workingman needed something more than the American Federation of Labor if he is to win his fight for better conditions.

"In the past five years, according to statistics submitted to me, I find the workingman is losing ground," said the professor. "The cost of living to him has about equalized in many cases the gains he has made in income.

"Now to correct this situation, the workingman has the opportunities of service and not often the opportunity of ownership. When we have more getting opportunities through the service or work they render the community, we will find a wider and deeper progress for the average man. If we increase the power of ownership we shall easily put things in a worse condition than they are today.

MUST ADVERTISE.

"School buildings should be opened after school hours, so that every one in the neighborhood may have the opportunity of going over in public the social difficulties confronting society.

"What an impression it would make in any community to find workingmen spending their spare time in getting more informed about the difficulties around them, and then arming them in public with one another in some public way, but arguing them intelligently.

"There is nothing like advertising your cause in public. Look at the I. W. W. Do you know what makes them so prominent? It is because they believe in publicity.

"If the average workingman will aim to make himself more intelligent upon the problems which concern his interests, he will advance more.

"He has got to organize differently than he is organized—I mean something more than the American Federation of Labor.

"Strikes are bound to exist in the present condition of society. I do not foresee their end, even in the face of boards of arbitration.

MUST PRESENT SIDE.

"There is one thing to be said about these boards and it is this: they bring parties concerned together. You must get people together. Capital and labor must come together.

"The working man must be able to present his side intelligently. He must not rely upon some organization to present it. He must know it himself from A to Z.

"All who seek the greater opportunities of the human race regret to find woman suffrage defeated. It has to come. There is no doubt about this. Like all true reforms, it must abide its time. I did think, however, Massachusetts would give a larger vote for this cause than it did.

"It is this conservative element which must be fought with intelligence. Nothing else will make it give way."

Professor Nearing has been appointed to the chair of economics in the University of Ohio.

GERMAN WAR DOG NOW A PRISONER IN FRENCH CAMP

©UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

'GERMANY MUST BE WARNED TO STAY AT HOME'

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd wires that he has discussed the war situation with Foreign Minister Basonoff, who said:

"We are grappling with a power which threatens to overturn the whole fabric of civilization as developed by the world of Christendom. The future of European culture, as opposed to German kultur, depends upon the overthrow of this power and the means taken to prevent its ever breaking out again.

"We must have the policy of this century based firmly upon the alliance between Russia, England and France. Other nations probably will come into our alliance, but we three must form the nucleus. We must say to Germany:

"'There are your frontiers and your limits. Work within them as you please, but out into the world you shall go no more. We have had enough of the disintegrating influence you bring to bear in every quarter of the world. We desire to live at peace as Christian nations.

"'Your unscrupulous rule, based on the principle of armed force, has threatened to enslave the world. That principle is abhorrent to us all. You must be content to stay quietly at home and conduct your commerce and domestic affairs as may please you best, but you shall no more encroach upon the sacred rights of your neighbors.'

"That is what Russia, England and France in alliance must say to Germany, and to the voices of these three will doubtless adhere many Christian nations of the world.

"It is my firm conviction that if the policy of the twentieth century does not rest upon a solid alliance between Russia, England and France, then this great war, into which we have been deliberately forced by Germany, will have been waged in vain, and all the blood and treasure expended upon it and still to be spent will have been entirely wasted."

Liberty Bell Now Homeward Bound

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The Panama-Pacific exposition said goodbye to the Liberty Bell today. The bell's last day at the exposition was marked by impressive ceremonies. At the official ceremonies Vladimir Moore represented the exposition, Mayor Rolph, the city and Governor Johnson the State. Director Edwin Penrose and Charles Seger, chairman of the joint committee of the Philadelphia council, spoke for Pennsylvania. Directly following the ceremonies each State and foreign commissioner placed a wreath on the bell. The bell will be taken to San Diego for a few days from San Diego the bell will go to Los Angeles and then East, stopping in many cities. It will arrive home November 25.

Ex-Gov. Brackett in Hospital Very Sick

John Quincy Adams Brackett, the oldest ex-Governor of Massachusetts, is seriously ill at the private hospital of Dr. J. F. Christian, in Marlboro street, Back Bay. He is stricken with partial paralysis, and general nervous collapse. His sickness first became serious about four weeks ago. In spite of his seventy-three years, the physicians hope to restore him to health that he may return to his home in Arlington in a few weeks.

HARVARD TO GET BIRDS FROM AMORY

NEWPORT, Nov. 11.—The schooner Kitty A., at Newport, which has been on a scientific cruise to Madeira, Morocco, Fayal, Teneriffe and other places on the African coast has returned, the start from here having been June 23, in charge of Henry B. Amory of Boston. The collection of birds is going to the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard.

Dr. W. G. Erving of Washington and Professor Charles W. Furlong of Boston left the schooner at Magador, Morocco, early in September, having to return home.

At Teneriffe the scientific work started, and through the documents issued by the State Department the efforts of the scientists was greatly facilitated.

Meeting By Men Of All Unions On Freight Strike

Harry F. Jennings, president of the Boston Central Labor Union, today sent out a call for every labor union in Boston to send one delegate to a meeting to be held tonight at Wells Memorial Building for the purpose of considering what action organized labor will take with regard to assisting the striking freight handlers of the Boston & Maine, Boston & Albany and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads.

President Jennings sent invitations not only to the unions federated with the A. F. of L., but also the Knights of Labor and all railroad brotherhoods.

This is the first time that such an action has been taken, and will call together delegates from all Boston unions, regardless with what parent body they are connected.

The railroads still refuse to listen to the arbitration offer of the strikers.

10 NECESSARY TO DO WORK OF 3 STRIKERS

Attorney A. W. Blackman, representing the New Haven Railroad at a hearing in the South Boston Court today on the question of Sunday work by strike-breakers employed after the freight handlers quit work, said that it takes ten strike-breakers to do the work three of the regular men used to do.

"The railroad is hiring them now at a loss," he said in the course of his argument. "One of the regular men used to do the work three of these men do. It takes ten of the new, untrained men to do the work three of the trained men used to do."

Seven foremen, two clerks and a laborer were in court on charges of doing unnecessary work on Sunday, October 24, the day after the strike started. Superintendent Hobbs of the Roxbury division of the New Haven admitted the men were working on Sunday, but claimed the work was necessary for the public good to prevent freight congestion.

The seven foremen were fined $50, appealed and were held in $500 for the Superior Court. The other men were found guilty, but their cases were placed on file. Sergeant Smith secured the summonses against the men who failed. Judge Inman today. They were:

Foremen—John A. Hodge, Patrick J. Walsh, Frank J. Wells, Joseph L. Hart, Edward Babcock, Eugene Hayes and John K. Crimmins. Clerks—Thomas H. Dooley and Michael J. Foley. Laborer—Alfonso Alvino.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home, is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just moisten a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.—Advertisement.

GERMAN LEADER CALLS WILSON PRO-BRITISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The injection of the hyphen into the presidential and congressional elections next year is strongly foreshadowed here by developments among German sympathizers.

One is the publication by Alphonse G. Koehle, president of the New York State Branch of the National German-American Alliance, of an open letter to President Wilson in which he accuses the Chief Executive of pro-British bias.

The other is the disclosure of a country-wide campaign inaugurated by the American Truth Society to bring about defeat of Congressional candidates who will not pledge themselves to the advocacy of measures ironing out the pro-German trend of neutrality.

Sir Koehle suggests that the pro-British bias with which he taxes President Wilson may be unconscious.

FIND BODY OF JOHN F. FINN IN RIVER

The body of John F. Finn, prominent liquor dealer, former owner of the Lawrence New England League and known here and England over, was found in the Merrimac River today.

Finn disappeared two weeks ago last Saturday night, and though fears of foul play were entertained the condition of the body when found convinced the medical examiner it was a case of accidental drowning, and he made that report.

The body was found by Alfred Parker, a boatman. It was floating in an upright position, only the head showing above the surface.

Part of the clothing were found, diamonds and money to a total value of about $1,000.

It had been believed these valuables formed a motive for Finn's supposed murder. That they were found, and that there were no bruises or wounds on the body, convinced Medical Examiner George W. Dow that the death was accidental.

The body was found near Glen Forest, a Summer resort about two miles above Lawrence. Finn had a Summer camp on Ivy Island, a mile above Glen Forest.

Stephen W. Dyer, a young student at the New Hampshire State College, at Durham, had spent Saturday with Finn at his camp. The night was windy and cold. Finn ferried Dyer to the north shore of the river late in the evening, and then started to return to camp. He was not seen again.

The next day, four of the seven [illegible] were found, one on the north bank of the river, and the other on the south.

The medical examiner said he believed that in attempting to land at Ivy Island on his return trip the canoe was overturned.

Finn was heavily clad, and the shock of sudden immersion in the cold water, coupled with the weight of the garments, [illegible] pulled him down.

DEMAND BRITAIN EXPLAIN ON ZEALANDIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11. Great Britain has been formally asked by the United States through Ambassador Page at London, for an explanation concerning the recent search of the American ship Zealandia on the Mediterranean port of Piraeus by a British party from a British cruiser.

A report from Admiral Dan Conger, Joint Washington, U.S. Navy, stated that the Zealandia was forcibly searched by boat from a British cruiser even after the ship's papers had been surrendered. Admiral Wilson to the state department.

The Zealandia sailed from the United States for Salonika, and was supposed to have carried a cargo of munitions. Although this was denied by the owners, the ship was held by the search party for about an hour, causing considerable alarm and a number of passengers to seek safety in the rigging.

It is reported that a searching party from the Zealandia boarded the vessel in search of the landing party found no armament. What I was after was and the character of the cargo has been revealed, but the search indicated that the ship would be released as soon as she got past the range of the guns.

DETAILS OF PLOT UPON U.S. FLEET

PROVIDENCE, N. Y. The Providence Journal says today:

"Plans to send a message to the Japanese Emperor, inviting him and all the officers of the Japanese fleet to visit the United States, was one of the features of the plot to destroy the American fleet in the event of war between the two countries.

The plot was revealed by the discovery of papers in the possession of Paul Meyer, a member of the Japanese Secret Service, who was arrested in New York on a charge of conspiracy to destroy the United States fleet.

Two armed guards were placed in every power house in the United States, it was learned today, as a result of the plot revealed by the arrest of Meyer.

The plot was believed to have been laid in attempt on the part of the Japanese Government to escape to the open sea, two fast destroyers were detached from the fleet and ordered below Tokio, while with instructions to stop any vessel that sought to get away.

So far as can be ascertained, the plan as perfected was to have been executed in the night of May 16-17, when President Wilson and his official party were being entertained by Admiral Fletcher aboard his flagship, the Wyoming. The condition of the weather which was stormy with a driving rain, seemed to favor the effort, but when it was discovered that information concerning the plot had leaked out and that a great many additional guards had been thrown around all the steamers at Hoboken and elsewhere, the attempt was abandoned.

At that time, in addition to the Mayflower, the President's yacht there were lying in the river the auxiliaries Dolphin of New York and Texas, the Wyoming, Utah, Florida, Delaware, North Dakota, Michigan, North Carolina, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Virginia, Rhode Island, Nebraska and Idaho. There were also sixteen destroyers, twelve submarines, three monitors and mine layers, repair, hospital, refrigerator and other auxiliary vessels.

Report Allies Are Retiring From Gallipoli

By International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 11. The allies' long expected retirement from Gallipoli peninsula has begun, according to Tageblatt, which states that it has received reliable information that the Anglo-French governments have decided that they have no chance of success in their land operations at the Dardanelles.

The Tageblatt reports that the First and Second French Regiments and the Tenth British Regiment, all infantry, have been withdrawn from Gallipoli and that others will follow at intervals.

LINART - GRIMM LOSE LAP IN BIKE RACE.

Score at 2 A. M. End of 30th Hour

	Miles	Laps
Grenda and Hill	724	5
McNamara and Spears	724	5
Bedell and Magin	724	5
Cameron and Kaiser	724	5
Root and Hanley	724	5
Walthour and Carman	724	5
Dupuy and Moran	724	5
Eaton and Madden	724	5
Linart and Grimm	724	4
Sullivan and Holbrook	724	3

Victor Linart, the Belgian, and Jim Grimm, the Newark, N. J., flyer, were jumped by their field in the six-day bike grind at the Arena last night and wound up the third leg a lap behind the eight leading teams.

The field was not sprinting at the time Grimm allowed himself to be shaken off. He simply got off the end of the line and, once "off," dropped steadily behind. Linart was summoned too late to save his team-mate.

The Arena was completely packed last night and the bulk of the "fans" remained in the building until the curtain went down on the third day's racing at 2 a. m. While the riders did not hit it up very fast during the afternoon, the excitement started just as soon as the "premiums" began being offered.

Reggie McNamara duplicated his good fortune of Tuesday night and won most of the cash awards. Last night McNamara's sprint was far sharper than Grenda's, the big fellow not showing to his best advantage, though always staying right there with the field.

The leaders remain seventeen miles ahead of the 1914 record.

Daredevil Hunter won the two-mile motor race from Turvilla when the track was cleared for this event at 10:30 o'clock. The time was 3:11 3-5.

Magin smashed his machine in the 9 o'clock jam. Hill started the sprint. Magin was in third position when his front tire burst. He went headlong from the curve, but luckily was uninjured. The other riders barely averted a bad smashup by riding the track high.

Shortly after 10 o'clock McNamara and Hill tried to get the Moran team napping while the Chelsea boy's partner was on the track.

It looked as if the Grimm-Linart combination had been distanced, but the pick-ups were so bad that the referee would not impose the penalty.

Mandot Signs for Scrap with Waugh

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 11.—Joe Mandot has been matched to fight "Bobby" Waugh fifteen rounds at Shreveport, La., November 26. "Rocky" Kansas started training for his fight with Frankie Russell next Monday night.

Felton Trims Cue Star from Chicago

George Felton, Boston's entrant in the Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard League, kept up his great work by vanquishing John Moore of Chicago, in their match at Littlefield's. The score was the close one of 50-47.

A big crowd saw the contest and was afforded one of the season's best billiard treats. Felton's high run was 6.

Another Breezy Section of Football--Illustrated--in Next Sunday's American

Yale-Princeton and Harvard-Brown are the headliners Saturday.

Of course, you read the football stories and saw the football pictures in last Sunday's Boston AMERICAN. They were the most interesting and complete yet published in New England.

Next Sunday the AMERICAN will repeat.

Damon Runyon, who wrote the breezy leading news account of the Harvard-Princeton game, will perform the same function for the Yale-Princeton contest.

Walter Camp, who gave the best review of last Saturday's classic from a purely football point of view, will write similarly of next Saturday's game in the Sunday AMERICAN.

D. C. Parmenter, the Harvard All-American centre, whose critical football stories are the most informative published, will see the Yale-Princeton game and, with the Harvard-Princeton contest fresh in his mind, will give you an idea of what will happen in the Yale-Harvard game, based upon what happened in Yale's and Harvard's play against Princeton.

Frank G. Menke, sporting editor of the International News Service, will furnish the details of the game.

Last Sunday, Dick Sears of the International Film Service, furnished the Boston Sunday AMERICAN with two of the best pages of pictures of the Harvard-Princeton game ever published. Next Saturday he will have his camera in the Yale bowl and will send over two pages of excellent illustrations of the New Haven classic for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

* * *

Herman Nickerson, who saw Yale play Brown last week, will watch Saturday's Harvard-Brown game, and will publish in the Sunday AMERICAN a review of both games, with conclusions as to how they will bear upon the Yale-Harvard struggle.

* * *

Ben Ames Williams, who wrote a story of the Harvard-Princeton game last week, will furnish a breezy column or two on the Harvard-Brown game for next Sunday's AMERICAN.

* * *

And there will be others.

This game, too, will be lavishly illustrated.

* * *

Also, as usual, the Boston Sunday AMERICAN will have complete accounts of all the other college and school games.

Lowney Out for B. C. and May Be Forced to Retire

News has reached Boston College that Connecticut State will not transfer Saturday's game to University Heights. This was received with regret, as the home games have been well attended this Fall and there are no other contests this season unless the management succeeds in arranging a Thanksgiving Day battle.

It is feared that Lowney's injuries are far more serious than first expected, and that the speedy halfback will be out of the game permanently. His place in the backfield has been taken by Joe McKenzie, who showed up well in yesterday's scrimmage.

"Doc" Fleming, the hero of the Fordham game, whose drop kick from the 25-yard line won for Boston College, was at fullback in place of Tovey. Fleming was a regular on the 1913 team.

Doc played quarter on the varsity in the short scrimmage with the scrubs and ran the team in snappy style. Coach Mahoney will probably start him in place of Kiley in the Connecticut State game.

Darling Wins Regent's Cup.

N. P. Darling, '17, won the Regent's Cup in Harvard's regatta in the Charles River basin, distance one mile, with B. Carpenter, '16, second. Time, 6m. 40s. C. R. Cabot, '17, was first home in the comp. race.

Codman Preps Seek Game.

MILLIGAN YOUNG SAILOR, who meets Charley White in the big number of the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night, is doing his training in Boston.

"HAVE not a fear, I'll beat White so far this time that the referee must give me the decision," states the Indianapolis boxer. "Honestly, they cow bring 'Billy' Roche over from New York if they want to. I'll win so far that even he must slip me credit."

THOUGH Saylor completely outroughed it with White when they hooked up at the Atlas A. A. some two months ago, the early betting favors the Nate Lewis entrant. There's plenty of 5 to 4 Saylor money obtainable; in fact, there's some 10 to 7 laying around.

THOSE odds are wrong, though. In granting that White is such a clever youth that he may pull a comeback this trip and belabor Saylor just as deftly as Saylor belabored him the other time they hooked up in Boston.

BOTH Nate Lewis and White admit that Saylor proved a far tougher miller than they had him doped. However, word from Chicago brings the merry information that Charley will step into the tally this time. Maybe so. Just the same his admirers shouldn't be overly generous with their odds. Even money is the proper price.

HARRY CARLSON, the speedy little lightweight from Brockton, who is coming to the fore with a rollicking rally, goes on with Jimmy Flynn, an importation from Brooklyn, in the semi-windup number. If Flynn proves as nifty as painted the bout is bound to be a hummer.

THE two six-rounders will be boxed by Sammy Stern and Barney Snyder, and Henry Hall and Joe Brown. Two merry melees may be seen.

JOE CHICK and Ray Wood are to go it again before the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester. They are booked for the big bout next Monday night. Promoter Eddie Mack had to rematch them, following their recent hurrah mill, so loudly did the L. A. C. members clamor for a return scrap.

WILLIE GREEN and Freddie Mc. Manus have been matched to meet in the semi-windup.

MACK announces that Chick will line up with Kaye Sweeney of New York in a twelve-rounder at Lawrence, Thanksgiving Day afternoon. Kaye shaded Joe in their bout in Albany, N. Y., a few weeks ago.

"BILLY" ROCAP, sporting editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and one of America's former amateur champions, is as shrewd a flatio critic as there is in the game. So his opinion of Frank Moran, the new sensation among the heavies, is well worth perusing.

"MORAN has all the attributes which go to make up the successful boxer," states Rocap. "His height, reach, skill, a stout heart and can hit a knockout blow with either hand. Above all, he possesses a certain amount of self-confidence, which is a valuable asset in a ring contest. Moran has just so much confidence in his own ability that he fears no man, and will stand up and swap punches with the best."

Ring Results

DETROIT, Nov. 11.—Phil Bloom of New York and "Pete" Drouillard, the Canadian lightweight champion, a real lasting before the Wayne A. C. The Eastern boxer had a margin in every one of the ten rounds.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—Johnny Schiff, the California featherweight, won from "Billy" Kramer of New York in ten fast rounds at Auburn Park.

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., Nov. 11.—Walter Mohr of New York was disqualified in the fourth round of his bout with "Kid" Burns, also of New York. The referee said Mohr had all the better of the first three rounds.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 11.—Joe Phillips, the Providence lightweight, got the decision over Billy Morris of Fall River in their twelve-round bout at the Rhode Island A. C.

YANKEE OWNERS TO BUILD IN MANHATTAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The fact that the Federal League is going to continue its war against O. B. and invade New York next season with the former Kansas City team, is likely to prevent Messrs. Ruppert and Huston from building a stadium for the Yankees on Dyckman Field, Long Island City.

It is reported that Colonel Ruppert and Captain Huston already have agreed to build a home for their team in Queens, but since the announcement made in Indianapolis that the Feds are coming here it is said that they changed their plans and will not locate outside of Manhattan.

Captain Huston is quoted as saying that the Yankees' new ball park will be constructed along the lines of the Chicago White Sox stadium and will accommodate 30,000 or more. It will be a single-decker, designed to carry a second tier if it is needed later. The new plant, Captain Huston declared, will not be completed until the middle of next season.

The switch of place, it is reported, is because, with the Feds located either in Manhattan or the Bronx and the Yankees over in Queens, Ruppert and Huston would find it too great a task to get the fans of Manhattan to patronize a ball team playing off Manhattan Island.

During the last two months of the season at the Polo Grounds the average attendance was only 2,300.

GOTHAM BOXING

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Tom Andrews, the Milwaukee promoter, has offered Martin Julian a match for Jim Savage with the winner of the Fred Fulton-Andre Anderson bout, which takes place in the Cream City, November 21.

BEN ROSENTHAL has clinched a fifteen-round bout between Young Ahearn and Italian Joe Gans to be staged at New Rochelle, Ct., on December 1. The weight is to be 158 pounds ringside.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., promoters are trying to arrange a fifteen-round bout between Jack Britton and Matt Wells for November 17.

DUTCH BRANDT vs. K. O. Joe Daly and Young Perdey vs. Young Kaufman are the two tens arranged by the Military A. C. of Brooklyn for next Monday night.

FINNEY BOYLE of Lowell and Young Britt of New Bedford will meet in a fifteen-round session at the Elm Rink in New Bedford next Monday night.

"SILENT" MARTIN, the deaf mute, has been matched to meet Al McCoy of Brooklyn, the middleweight title holder. The men will box fifteen rounds at Waterbury, Ct., on Thanksgiving Day.

"RATTLING" LEVINSKY and Tom Cowler are to box ten rounds at the Olympia A. C. of Harlem next Monday night.

LEACH CROSS, who is credited with having earned more than $100,000 in the ring, will face Johnny Harvey in a ten-rounder at the Harlem Sporting Club on November 19. At the same club Matt Wells will face Young Brown and Joe Azevedo will mingle with Benny Leonard.

YALE EIGHT HIT WITH RICE OF COLUMBIA

By JAMES C. RICE.
Coach of Columbia University Crews.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 11.—Yale will send one of the finest crews that has ever pulled an oar for the Blue against Columbia in their mile and seven-eighths race here tomorrow afternoon.

Although I could not accept the invitation of Guy Nickalls, the Yale head coach, and follow the Yale crew with him in his launch yesterday afternoon, I had a good look at it from the boathouse, and I must say that I have never seen a Yale crew which applied its power so smoothly and which rowed with such the form as the Yale eight. To put it mildly, I was surprised.

Early season or not, Yale has a good crew and the stroke is long and low. It is as good in rough water as in smooth, despite the fact that its average weight is well over 175 pounds. For a big, husky crew it rows with surprising "pep," and I think Nickalls has developed a crew which will far exceed the expectations of his staunchest admirers.

ARRANGE MORE TALKS ON CITY PLANNING

Because of the increasing interest in the free Metropolitan City Planning Exhibition, arranged by the Council of Fifty, which will open the new east wing of the State House tomorrow at 10 a. m., the Public Meetings Committee yesterday decided on a series of afternoon meetings and conferences to take place during the exhibition in addition to the evening meetings.

There will also be brief, informal talks on city planning topics at the moving picture shows to be given each noon in the public hearing room on the ground floor of the new wing.

The afternoon meetings will take place at 4 o'clock in the public hearing room. On Monday afternoon John E. Lathrop, director of the American City Bureau city planning exhibit, will speak on "The Mechanics of City Planning."

State Forester Frank W. Rane will speak Tuesday afternoon on "Shade Trees and Forestry," and will illustrate his talk with stereopticon views and moving pictures.

On Wednesday afternoon Fire Prevention Commissioner John A. O'Keefe will give an illustrated talk on "Fire Prevention."

A recreation conference will be held Thursday afternoon. It will be a public meeting. Joseph Lee of the Boston School Committee will preside, and E. T. Hartman, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League, will be one of the speakers. The general topic will be "What Is Proper Service by a City to the People from Parks, Playgrounds, Municipal Buildings and Other Recreation Opportunities?" The moving pictures of the St. Louis pageant and masque will be shown at this meeting.

There will be a meeting on housing Friday afternoon, and on the closing afternoon, Saturday, November 20, a Junior Citizens' Conference, at which Franklin T. Kurt will preside, and President Frank L. Locke of the B. Y. M. C. Union will speak.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

The AMERICAN disapproves of a loan to prolong the war in Europe and is unwilling to accept any money for advertising such a loan. The AMERICAN does not, however, feel at liberty to deprive its readers of the statements of the proponents of the loan, whether in news text or in advertising. The AMERICAN therefore prints the advertisement of the loan, but contributes the money paid therefor to the Red Cross, in the hope of relieving some of the suffering and injury which a war loan will inevitably cause.

Optimism on the Bay State Street Railway

Must the Public Pay for It?

THE hearing on the six-cent fare petition of the Bay State Street Railway Company before the Public Service Commission has begun.

Counsel for the street railway made an interesting statement when, after reviewing the purchases and extensions of the Bay State Street Railway, he said:

"Clear-headed men behind this enterprise believed, through possible economies and a greater financial strength, the outcome was bound to be larger and better service with fair return upon investment. Events have proved they were TOO OPTIMISTIC about some things, mistaken about others and fated to meet obstacles that the wisest would never have foreseen."

The AMERICAN wonders whether any part of this alleged "OPTIMISM" found its expression in the payment of fancy prices for the street railways which the Bay State acquired.

At the criminal trial of the New Haven Railroad directors for attempting to create a railroad monopoly a very interesting letter from President Mellen was read, which may possibly throw some light upon the kind of "OPTIMISM" that results in demands for increases in car fares and freight rates and causes deterioration in service. Said Mr. Mellen in this letter:

"But then you know the New Haven road has always been prone to underestimate the value of a competitor, and as a result of delay in VERY MANY INSTANCES PAID A TREMENDOUS SUM WHEN, WITH A VERY LITTLE EFFORT, THE COMPETITION COULD HAVE BEEN STOPPED AT ITS INCEPTION, AND WITH VERY LITTLE EXPENDITURE.

"The road has been extremely fortunate in being so rich it could afford to pay the price it had for its acquisitions, but is there no limit beyond which even a property like the New Haven can go? And is it wise when you know how much depends upon the maintenance of your monopoly not to take in what you must eventually have when the opportunity offers, even at a moderate advance over and above what you estimate the value of such an acquisition to be at the time?"

The advancement of the arts and sciences, the increase in the size and hauling power of the big locomotive, the automatic brakes and couplers and signals, the greater capacity of the cars and all the improvements which the inventive genius of the age has enabled the railroads and street railways to make, together with the increase of population and the increase in the density of business, ought to cause a decrease in car fares and freight rates and a betterment of service. But by such performances as Mr. Mellen depicts in this letter, extravagant acquisitions for the purpose of unlawful monopoly, political corruption, waste and mismanagement, everywhere these public service corporations have more than absorbed the economies which this advance in the arts and sciences ought to have enabled the railroads and street railways to make. It is perfectly silly for the Bay State to argue that any increase of wages which they have made or have in immediate contemplation is equal to the saving in labor cost of the service they render to the public by the greater capacity of their cars. Two men on these great cars will handle twice as many passengers as two men on the little cars fifteen or twenty years ago.

From the beginning of railroad history we have had one continuous, uninterrupted story of the successful struggle by private managers of these public service corporations to absorb by chicane the economies which the improvements of the age enable the railroads to make. These private managers of our public service corporations seem to regard it as a very religious duty to prevent the public from getting the advantage of its own inventive genius and its own increase in population. Today the railroads, after having successfully absorbed the economies from inventions, are now waging a determined campaign to absorb the so-called "unearned increment," by which they propose to increase their freight rates and car fares upon a basis of an increase in the value of the land devoted to railroad purposes, vast tracts of which were given to the railroads, and the increase of all of which grows out of the increase of population and public enterprise. It would mean the taking of hundreds of millions out of the pockets of those who ship goods or travel on our railroads every year.

This struggle to keep the public from sharing in the advantages of the modern improvements began with the creation of the first railroad and has continued unabated to the present hour, and will continue so long as our public service corporations remain in private hands. It is a vice inherent in the private management of a public function, and it will never cease until the public begins to perform its own function by acquiring these corporations and operating them.

Once-Overs

Every time you have an opportunity to encourage a young man, do it.

But don't be fulsome in your words of commendation. If he has done something worthy of recognition, tell him about it, and if you know some way in which he can improve upon his accomplishment, tell him that also. If he be the right sort he will be glad of the information.

Any man properly balanced is glad of instruction which adds to his useful knowledge.

There are some people so thin skinned, however, that they believe a compliment accompanied by a recommendation has lost all the flavor of a compliment. These are the vain persons, who desire flattery, not real compliment.

What Is a High-Brow?

By Henry N. MacCracken

President of Vassar College

I HAVE been declining membership in leagues, associations and societies at a rate which makes me fear that the whole country is joining something. There are societies to limit the "movies" and nearly everything else in the world. But if some one would come along and organize a league to limit vocabularies I think I should change my rule and accept membership on the executive committee.

There are so many words in the language—one too many, at any rate. That word is "high-brow."

A Word for Derision

Just stop for a moment and ask yourself what you imply when you use that word. For a while, perhaps, you meant by it only an intellectual snob—one who paraded his own learning and despised the lack of it in others; but now you use it to characterize any sort of intellectual effort beyond that absolutely necessary for carrying on merest existence.

Every effort of growth is "high-brow" now.

Any boy who studies in school today is called a "high-brow" by his mates; any boy in college who has an interest in painting, let us say, is a "high-brow;" the man in your circle who ventures on a discussion of a serious question is a "high-brow."

In short, the word is now in full swing throughout the country to express derision for the business of the mind.

Now, you are, no doubt, justified in the original use of the word. You have met men and women who have paraded their longer education, their greater opportunities, with more show than reality, and you properly resented their self-complacency.

But see what has followed. You have yourself established a caste in your country—the country which proudly denies that it has classes and castes; you have set apart in a social concentration camp those of your citizens who really care for the things of the mind; you have denied the one great force on which democracy is based, which is the unity of knowledge.

Two Kinds of Education

There are only two kinds of education. I see no other divisions. People talk about vocational and cultural, technical and professional, elementary and post-graduate, theoretical and practical, and many other similar divisions.

I see no real distinction existing in all these. There is only one distinction which counts. That is the distinction between scratching the surface and digging to the roots.

The girl in the lamp factory sits at her post day after day, and as the bulbs go by she gives a quick twist to each one, thus accomplishing a certain process in the manufacture of the electric bulb. Hour after hour, day after day, year after year, she performs this single act. Her mind is elsewhere—only the routine of the muscular habit holds her accurately to the task. She neither knows nor cares why she does this particular action; enough for her that she is paid for doing it. Her education is a mere scratching of the surface of knowledge.

On the other hand, study her companion. She is interested in her act; she seeks to know why the process she is doing is necessary; she finds a more comfortable attitude in pursuing the work; she speaks of it to the foreman; the foreman adopts the suggestion. Soon she has another suggestion to make. Possibly she questions the value of this action; possibly a machine suggests itself which will accomplish this work. This is real education; this is digging to the roots and causes.

These distinctions in education exist everywhere, from the lowest benches in the kindergarten room to the seats of the mighty in the post-graduate chairs of research. You will always find, side by side, in factory, school, farm or college, the man who does the thing for what he can get out of it and the man who does the thing for what there is in it.

I know no other division in the kingdom of learning. All knowledge is one. All science is one. It is not the prerogative of the college and the professor's chair.

The inventive mind, probing the roots of things, may dwell in the head of the chemist at the corner drug store, and the scientific processes which shall revolutionize the future may come just as readily from a small town in Ohio as from the great university in the metropolis.

Pioneer Needs Encouragement

But the pioneer of the mind has a lonely life at best; he needs the encouragement and the respect of his friends. If you are going to look at him askance as he works in the drug store and call him "high-brow" he will seek other circles where encouragement is to be found, and where the derision of the multitude for what they do not understand is met by the reasonable contempt for the intellectual snob.

You who use the word "high-brow" to decry learning see only the small, self-appointed crowd of amateurs who pose self-consciously in the limelight of city life. You mistake, as so many do, the false for the real. Look a little deeper, my friend, the next time the word "high-brow" comes to your lips. Learn the distinction between the sham and the reality. And, above all, try to rid yourself of that benighted provincialism which darkens and dulls American life when it rests content with creature comforts and denies value to the things of the spirit.

In-Shoots

Some people who pose as patriots are only human yeast cakes.

Sometimes a lot of loose cogs are rattling behind that high brow.

The paths of the joy rider lead but to kingdom coma.

There are a good many United States Senators who could not hold down second base in a minor league.

Prudence and Prudery

"Every Girl Should Be a Peach, but the Most Desired Hangs Highest on the Tree"

By Dorothy Dix

A PROBLEM that confronts every girl at some time or other is where to draw the line between prudery and prudence in her dealings with men. She doesn't want to be a prunes and prisms sort of a girl, one of the kind who is always on the lookout for a shock, and who takes hold of a man's arm as if she would prefer to use the tongs in touching it. She wants to be free, and frank, and fearless, and yet her maidenliness shrinks from any familiarity from one of the opposite sex, and so the question of how to maintain a thus-far-and-no-further attitude toward men becomes a very difficult one for a young and inexperienced girl.

The difficulty is further enhanced by the fact that every normal girl desires to be admired and to receive attentions from men, and she sees that the popular girl—the girls who have hosts of beaux and are overrun with invitations for theatres and parties and every amusement—are the free-and-easy girls who permit little liberties and in whose presence a man does not need to put much restraint upon either his tongue or his manners.

An older woman could tell such a girl that she was taking a short view of the subject, and that while the fast woman will always get the most service, admiration and attention from men, she is seldom the woman that they marry. They like to be with her when they want an hour's amusement, for she is jolly and amusing and easy to talk to, and they have to make no effort to change their mental attitude in her presence, but when a man thinks of a woman as a companion for a lifetime, and not a day, he wants something better, purer, more womanly, and one for which he has more respect.

Men are cruelly inconsistent in their dealings with women. They amuse themselves with one type of woman, and then they marry another. A man will teach a girl to drink cocktails and then refuse to marry her because she does it. He will persuade a girl to go to see a problem play and then condemn her because she went.

No girl need ever be afraid that she hurts herself in a man's opinion by womanly reserve and dignity. He may laugh at her a bit for a little Puritan if she won't go to a restaurant with him without a chaperon, and if the very suggestion of an off-colored story dyes her innocent cheek with scarlet, but in his heart he respects her for it. She is the kind of girl that he would like his sister to be and that he hunts up for himself when he marries.

If you will notice you will see that the gay, brilliant, good fellow, much admired belle of a season, who was a connoisseur in mixed drinks and double entendre stories and an expert at cards seldom marries as well as the shy little girl whose only attraction was the white halo of her innocence, and ignorance, and purity.

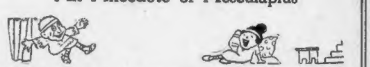
Another very practical argument for maidenly reserve may be found in the fact that man's leading passion is the passion for the chase, and that the harder the thing is to get the more he wants it and the more determined he is to have it. No man cares to kiss the lips that are within his reach. It is the ones that are denied him for which he hungers and thirsts and which he spends his life trying to win. No girl could have a more potent charm for men than to diffuse about herself an intangible atmosphere of aloofness—of being guarded by a maidenly delicacy that would take alarm at the slightest approach to familiarity.

Every man worthy of the name honors the girl who honors herself, and if there are any others who are driven away from her because she will not permit liberties from them, she should bless Heaven that a danger has been removed from her path. This does not mean that she should be a prude. She can be friendly without being familiar, and she should never forget that while every girl should be a peach, the ripest peach and the most desired hangs highest on the tree.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

An Anecdote of Aesculapius

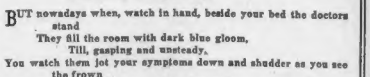


OLD Doctor Aesculapius, when ever patients used to fuss
About their aches and pains and shakes
And symptoms and diseases,
Would throw them into laughing fits with funny pre-Socratic skits,
Hellenic gags and Lydian rags
And Alexandrian wheezes.

SO well the good old Doc could sing, so well he did the buck and wing,
His dancing step so full of pep,
His mimicry so clever,
His patients burst into a roar and laughed until their sides were sore
And soon forgot that they were not
As well and strong as ever.

BUT nowadays when, watch in hand, beside your bed the doctors stand
They fill the room with dark blue gloom,
Till, gasping and unsteady,
You watch them jot your symptoms down and shudder as you see the frown
That makes you sure as fate that you're
At least half dead already.

IF but the doctors of today would lay their air of gloom away
And just recite some zippy, bright
And clever vodeville verses,
They'd find that half a dozen laughs would obviate six epitaphs;
Each brilliant jape a yard of crape,
Twelve gags a dozen hearses!



Behind the Times

It seems foolish in these modern times for Venice to take so much trouble to protect those gilded horses. Why doesn't she legve them to their fate, and if a bomb drop on them erect nice up-to-date gilded automobiles in their stead?

Why Should He?

Mr. Bryan says now that he will not go to Europe. He must have had time between speeches to discover that that half-billion-dollar loan is to remain in this country.

No Thriller

"My, how I have enjoyed this performance," said an old lady in a theatre. "I haven't been worried since the curtain went up."
